FREAK TWISTER KILLS 1 MAN AND INJURES 30

TEARS THROUGH MIAMI VALLEY, OHIO, TODAY

TENTATIVE ESTIMATES PLACE
TOTAL DAMAGE AT
$500,000

STORM FIRST STRUCK CUMMINSVILLE, THEN NEWTON, ETC.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 19.—(UP)—One man was killed and more than thirty persons were injured when a freak twister tore through sections of the Miami valley today.

The storm struck at Cumminsville where many buildings were demolished and then leaped to Newton, Hamilton and Washington Court House, leaving a trail of wreckage, interrupting communication and halting traffic.

Tentative estimates placed the damage at $500,000.

Richard Kruger, Dayton, Ohio, salesman, was killed at Washington Court House when the wind swept a pile of bricks from the top of a building onto his automobile.

Twenty injured had been received at general hospital here at 1:15 P. M. and rescue crews and relief workers, led by city and Red Cross officials, were attempting to penetrate the debris in an effort to establish if there were more dead.

The populace of Cumminsville, warned by the roar of the approaching storm, ran into the streets.

"Had the tornado struck two hours earlier, when everybody was sleeping, hundreds would have been killed," Police Chief William Copeland declared.

Trees and telegraph poles were uprooted and dropped on the streets. Electric signs, flagpoles and signboards were torn from buildings. Hundreds of windows were shattered.

Sections of several houses collapsed.

Other structures caved in.

At Hamilton, O., the wind whipped two schools in which classes were in session. Five pupils were cut by flying glass.

Trolley wires were blown down here.

The velocity of the wind was high at Newton, but no one was reported injured.

The storm cut a path five blocks wide through the Cumminsville section. It was described by weather bureau officials as a "severe squall."

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 19.—A tornado struck the Cumminsville district of Cincinnati shortly after 9 A. M. today, injuring a score of persons and tearing down buildings, trees were uprooted and telephone poles blown down.

First reports to police said several persons had been killed.

Other parts of the city were not affected by the freak storm.

City officials estimated the damage would exceed $100,000.

Dr. J. C. Mitchell, a veterinarian attached to the city health department, rescued three persons from the ruins of their home.

One three story brick building collapsed, but a man and woman who occupied the building escaped unscathed.

The twister tore through a section four blocks wide.

Three women and a boy were injured when a three story frame house collapsed.

Falling trolley wires menaced the terror-stricken people as they ran through the streets.

Six workmen narrowly escaped death when the Murdock garage, a frame structure, was partially demolished.

An American Telephone & Telegraph lineman at Washington Court House, reported to his company headquarters that several persons had been killed or injured there.

A score of buildings, some of them two and three stories high, were razed and city officials expressed the fear that several dead will be found beneath the ruins.

The storm was a freak of a strange winter. Unseasonably warm weather has prevailed throughout Ohio

2 GIRLS CRAWL UNDER SAFETY GATES; ARE KILLED

Chicago, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Two young girls, hurrying to school in Oak Park, a suburb, today, crawled under safety gates blocking the track of an interurban transit line and were killed by an express train.

They were Imelda Lorgion, 11, and Mary Steffens, 9. William Carroll, motorman of the train, collapsed after the accident, which police said was unavoidable.

HOTELLING ON WAY TO PRISON AT MARQUETTE

TRIP MADE BY AUTOMOBILE AND COMPLETED BY MID-
FORENOON

SHERIFF FRANK A. GREEN AND DEPUTIES SPIRIT PRISONER AWAY

Flint, Mich., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Sentenced to solitary confinement at hard labor for the rest of his life, Adolph Hotelling, slayer of Dorothy Schneider, was enroute today to Marquette branch prison.

Sheriff Frank A. Green and deputies, who spirited Hotelling out of Flint after his conviction late yesterday, evaded notice in the lower Michigan peninsula most of the night.

The trip was being made by automobile and was expected to be completed by mid-forenoon.

Mackinaw City, Mich., Jan. 19.—Several hundred persons struggled to catch a glimpse of Adolph Hotelling when his train arrived here today. A ferry trip, started at 7:30 A. M., C. S. T., took him to the upper Michigan peninsula where Marquette penitentiary is situated.

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Adolph Hotelling, wife of the slayer of Dorothy Schneider of Mt. Morris, lapsed into a coma today and her condition was pronounced "very serious" by the attending physician, Dr. W. S. Weinkauff of Corunna.

LEAKING 'FURNITURE' LED TO LIQUOR CHARGES PRESSED

Chicago, Jan. 19.—(UP)—An army private testified before a court martial board today that Capt. J. Leland Bass, U. S. A., ordered him to remove alcohol in wholesale quantities from the army warehouse here and deliver it to civilians.

Bass is charged with violation of army regulations. Leaking "furniture" sent by him from Chicago to Mount Clemens, Mich., led to the charges.

Private Tony W. Moore, truck driver in the quartermaster corps, gave the first testimony tending to support charges that Bass's activities were linked with civilian operators in the "alcohol racket" here.

COLLEGE GIRL DISAPPEARANCE IS UNSOLVED

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Fear that the disappearance of Miss Frances St. John Smith from her classes at Smith college would resolve into a final mystery similar to that of Miss Alice Corbett in 1925, was expressed today.

Miss Smith has been missing from the school since Friday, January 13. Despite rumors that a girl, answering the description of Miss Smith, had been seen in many cities of the east, there has been no actual trace of her.

Such was the case of Miss Corbett. She disappeared on a Friday the thirteenth. There were rumors she had been seen in many cities, and the rumors all were traced. However there has never been a solution of the disappearance.

WORRIED OVER HIS INABILITY TO RECOUP FORTUNE

IS BELIEVED RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF JAMES POTTER
AND 3 OF FAMILY

4 DIED EARLY TODAY IN EXCLUSIVE LODGING HOUSE IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Worry over inability to recoup a fortune, which once was rated at more than $1,000,000, today was believed responsible for the death of James Potter and three members of his family.

The four died early today in an exclusive lodging house in the Euclid Avenue district. Death was attributed to poisoning. Three glasses, each containing a small amount of white fluid, were found in the house.

Besides Potter those dead are Mrs. Potter, member of a pioneer family of this district; and two sons, James, 16, and Robert, 14.

Police believe Potter gave the three members of his family a mixture of poison and cough syrup and then drank some of the poison himself. An autopsy was to be performed today.

First alarm of the tragedy was given when Mrs. Potter ran into the hall of their newly acquired lodging house and screamed for help.

Miss Emily Reigler, a nurse, ran into the Potter apartment to find Potter and his younger son extremely ill. The elder son was attempting to aid them when he suddenly became ill.

Within a few minutes all three died and shortly thereafter Mrs. Potter died.

Shortly before Mrs. Potter died, the nurse told police, she gasped: "Daddy has given us some cough medicine and we are all ill."

She died before elaborating on this statement.

Potter had been in financial difficulties. He was a contractor at Steubenville, Ohio, and was reputed to be a millionaire.

Then his finances failed him and he came to Cleveland about the first of the month, bringing his family with him. He took over a large house in one of the better residential sections of the city and started a select lodging house.

Last week he was indicted in Steubenville on charges of conversion of money. He had undertaken several ambitious building projects there in recent months, according to word here.

Evidence that the murders and suicide had been planned beforehand were given to police today by Miss Maude Hohman, intimate friend of the family who lived at the Potter lodging house.

When about to retire last night, she said Potter handed her a small paper wrapped package, bound with rubber bands.

"If I am not here in the morning open this and keep what it contains," Potter told her.

"You will know what to do with it. If I am here you can give it back to me unopened."

The package was forgotten until this morning when it was opened and found to contain five $20 bills.

9,000 SHOE WORKERS PROTEST WAGE CUT

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Nearly 9,000 shoe workers were on strike here this afternoon in protest against wage reductions of 10 to 35 per cent.

Fifteen hundred workers who started the strike this morning were joined later in the day by some 7,500 others, leaving 3,000 of the city's 12,000 shoe operatives at work.

HEART STOPS BEATING; REVIVED BY ADRENALIN

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Five minutes after his heart stopped beating, Harry P. Robinson, 38, was revived by adrenalin yesterday and today physicians said he had a chance to live.

A throat infection, which poisoned his blood caused his heart to stop beating, physicians said.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Revived yesterday after his heart had stopped beating for five minutes, Harry P. Robinson, 38, was reclaimed by death today.

Poison from an infected throat entered his blood, causing his heart to stop beating, physicians said. He was revived with adrenalin and lived for 20 hours.

SPEAKERS LAUD MINNESOTA'S DAIRY INDUSTRY

RAY P. CHASE DISCUSSES SOURCES OF STATE AS

OFFICERS IN GENERAL ARE RE-ELECTED BY THE ASSOCIATION

St. Cloud, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Adjournment of the Minnesota State Dairymen's Association convention was to be taken late today after three days of sessions during which Speakers lauded the state's dairy industry.

The fiftieth annual banquet of the organization was held last night when Ray P. Chase, state auditor, discussed the resources of Minnesota.

Election of officers was held Wednesday and the following were selected to continue in offices:

L. Jensen, Clearbrook, president; N. P. Hanson, Detroit Lakes, first vice president; Stuart McLeod, Goodridge, second vice president; Chris Heen, Osakis, secretary, and J. M. Jack, Northfield, treasurer.

STATE OFFICIALS ARE CALLED TO TESTIFY

GOVERNMENT SUBPOENAS THE GOVERNOR, COMMISSIONER

JUDGE OSCAR HALLAM, ATTORNEY
CHESTER JOHNSON IN COCHRAN CASE

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Governor Theodore Christianson, A. J. Veigel, state banking commissioner, Judge Oscar Hallam and Chester Johnson, St. Paul attorney, have been subpoenaed in the government's prosecution of C. A. Cochran and 26 aides on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with his promotional activities.

This was revealed at noon today.

PSEUDO AGENT ORDERS HANDS UP; GETS $16

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—(UP)—After announcing that he was a federal prohibition agent, a man ordered Andrew Elsc0, in charge of a drinking place, and several customers to "waltz into a back room."

The "agent" then escaped with $16 from the cash register.

USE MARSHAL AS SHIELD WHEN BULLETS FLY

OFFICER INJURED IN VOLLEY
FIRED BY ST. PAUL POLICE INTO TRUCK

EXAMINATION OF VEHICLE
SHOWED 22 BULLETS
FIRED INTO CAB

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(UP)—After kidnaping the town marshal of River Falls, Wis., when he investigated their activities, a gang of bandits was chased to St. Paul by River Falls citizens and early today shot it out with police here.

When the smoke of battle cleared two men were shot, one bandit captured and a detective narrowly missed death when a bullet passed through his hat.

Six bandits were sighted at River Falls, but only three of them brought Marshal Roy Hyatt of that place as a captive to St. Paul. The other three probably escaped in a second automobile.

The bandits are believed to have contemplated a raid on a bank or a lumberyard at River Falls.

At 2:30 o'clock they drove into the little town in a small truck, and stopped in front of the home of Mrs. George Dodge. She heard them talking and became suspicious and awakened her son, Ted. He called Marshal Hyatt who hurried to the Dodge home.

Tracking the men to the office of the Central Lumber Company and thence to their waiting machine, the marshal found them ready to enter the car.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

"Get in that car and be damn quick about it," one of them replied, threatening him with a gun.

Marshal Hyatt was forced into the machine and it started with terrific speed toward Prescott, Wis.

Ted Dodge and Dr. E. O. Kalk who had a fast car gave chase.

"It was desperately hard driving through the snow," said Dr. Kalk, "but we arrived in Prescott a few minutes after the bandits had crossed the toll bridge for St. Paul. We telephoned the St. Paul police from Prescott."

A gun squad was dispatched to the chase when the call was received at headquarters here, and the car sped out on highway No. 3 to meet the bandits.

Evading the officers, the bandits were into St. Paul before officers knew it, and the latter then took up the chase.

At Fifth and Maria avenues the officers came upon the small truck and opened fire.

In the dim lights which the headlights of the two cars made through the falling snow the police saw a man standing up in the front seat. It later developed that this was Marshal Hyatt. The bandits had forced him to stand hoping to use him as a shield from police bullets. Hyatt fell when a shot imbedded in his side and the bandits deserted the truck and fled. Detectives rushed to the machine. There they found Hyatt and Tom Plattner, St. Paul, lying in the machine, wounded. Plattner is believed to have driven the car.

Examination of the truck which carried the bandits from River Falls to St. Paul disclosed that 22 bullets had been fired into the cab, none of them, however, taking effect. These were bullets fired at the fleeing bandits by Dr. Kalk and Dodge in the chase.

River Falls, Wis., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Working with police of St. Paul, local authorities and citizens today sought to learn something of the operations of a second automobile

ON EVE OF GOING HOME, GIRL JUMPS FROM 14TH FLOOR

New York, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Only a few minutes after telling two friends how glad she would be to return to her Tennessee home, Miss Stella Loeb, wearied by an arduous business career in New York, jumped from her fourteenth floor apartment and was killed.

Miss Loeb, who came to the city four years ago to become a buyer in a large department store, had resigned her position and packed her bags to take the next train to Kenton, Tenn.

STATE FAIR HAS AMBITIOUS BUILDING PROGRAM

$5,000,000 GROWTH IS NOW UNDER CONSIDERATION

ENLARGED EDUCATIONAL PLANS,
READJUSTMENT OF
PREMIUMS, ETC.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(UP)—A $5,000,000 building program for the Minnesota State Fair is being worked out as one of the large number of improvements planned, it was announced today by William F. Sanger, Winona, president.

Other improvements listed by Sanger include an enlarged educational program, readjustment of premiums in various departments, a campaign for increased entries; booking of super-attractions and a new method of presenting them, and the starting of an intensive publicity campaign with plans for a greater fair.

R. J. Pease, Birmingham, Ala., landscape architect, has been retained to work out details for the $5,000,000 program which the legislature will be asked to approve at its next session. It is planned to spread the building program over a number of years.

The plans include new barns, new agricultural and horticultural buildings, a new boys' and girls' headquarters, a mammoth industrial building and relocation of present buildings, streets, walks, street car loops and railway terminals.

Contact men will be sent out by the fair management to appear before various organizations throughout the state to explain in detail the plans for the bigger fair.

BOY'S BODY IS RECOVERED FROM MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 19.—(UP)—The body of 4-year-old Donald Davidsaver was taken from the Mississippi river late Wednesday after a search of several days. The boy was drowned last Friday when he went on the ice with a playmate and fell through a hole. The drowning occurred near the boys' home at Spring Lake bottoms.

besides the truck in which Marshal Roy Wyatt was kidnaped here early today.

After probing several angles of the appearance of the automobiles here, local authorities said they believed the purpose of the bandits was not to raid a local institution, but rather was the meeting of two bandit gangs intent on perpetrating a raid on a bank store of office in the Twin Cities.

It was pointed out that Hyatt was captured and taken to St. Paul in almost the same manner that the town marshal of Mora, Minn., was kidnaped and taken to Minneapolis two weeks ago.

That the bandits who last night entered River Falls are the same ones who raided several Mora business places was intimated by authorities, and the police of Mora have been asked for information they might have gained in the recent robberies.

MINNESOTA'S OWN ALL-AMERICAN TO APPEAR IN PERSON

COMES AS GREATEST SURPRISE TO THEATER'S MOST POPULAR WEEK

SIX TO RECEIVE AUTOGRAPHED
FOOTBALLS FROM NA-TION'S IDOL

The biggest and best surprise of all!

To top the week of surprises offered by Wray Hiller, manager of local F. & R. theaters at the Lyceum this week, which to date have set a new mark in theater attendances here, the big surprise comes tomorrow night with the appearance in person of Herb Joesting, the Owatonna pile driver, twice selected All-American fullback by coaches throughout the country.

And a further attraction—Joesting has consented to autograph six regulation size footballs which will go to six lucky persons in the theater. Just how the envied footballs will be distributed has not been decided. It was suggested that Herb autograph the balls and then kick each one into the audience to be grabbed and kept by the fortunates. If it is found that this will not be the most satisfactory method, the footballs will be given away by the drawing of numbers.

The Lyceum theater was able to secure the appearance of the internationally known figure through the courtesy of Finkelstein & Ruben, who have signed Herb for a number of stage appearances in the north-west.

After spurning professional football with its quick and golden rewards, turning down theater contracts by the score and refusing many other offers to capitalize on a great football record and national reputation, the gridiron idol of the nation has succumbed to the lure of the footlights, signing a contract with Finkelstein & Ruben to make personal appearances in a number of cities of the northwest.

However, the greatest football player of the year, still holding his education first, made his decision only after being assured that it would not put a stumbling block in the way of gaining a degree at the University. He has made arrangements with F. & R. for engagements only over the week-ends and one-night trips. Thus his career in front of the painted boards will not take him away from classes and he will study while travelling and from engagements.

The Gopher "Thunderbolt" makes his stage debut with a specially prepared film of the Minnesota football team in action during the 1927 season. The film shows Herb and the "Fighting Gophers" in their terrific gridiron battle with Notre Dame and Michigan, fighting to victory over Wisconsin, North Dakota and Iowa and struggling to a tie with Indiana.

Mayor Frank E. Little of Brainerd and R. F. D. Cote of Camp Lincoln will give short introductory talks before Joesting makes his bow.

Joesting is a well known figure here but the people of Brainerd are always anxious to see him and cheer him for the great football record he has achieved, bringing fame to Minnesota and the 10,000 lakes district. Joesting was a councillor at Camp Lincoln for Boys at Hubert last summer and made many friends here.

Joesting's only appearance in the city will be at the two shows at the Lyceum theater tomorrow evening. Manager Hiller announced today. Joesting's next appearance will be at a theater in Fargo.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Sentenced to solitary confinement at hard labor for the rest of his life, Adolph Hotelling, slayer of Dorothy Schneider, was enroute today to Marquette branch prison.

Sheriff Frank A. Green and deputies, who spirited Hotelling out of Flint after his conviction late yesterday, evaded notice in the lower Michigan peninsula most of the night.

The trip was being made by automobile and was expected to be completed by mid-forenoon.

Mackinaw City, Mich., Jan. 19.—Several hundred persons struggled to catch a glimpse of Adolph Hotelling when his train arrived here today. A ferry trip, started at 7:30 A. M., C. S. T., took him to the upper Michigan peninsula where Marquette penitentiary is situated.

Owosso, Mich., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Adolph Hotelling, wife of the slayer of Dorothy Schneider of Mt. Morris, lapsed into a coma today and her condition was pronounced "very serious" by the attending physician, Dr. W. S. Weinkauff of Corunna.

EAKING 'FURNITURE' LED TO LIQUOR CHARGES PRESSED

Chicago, Jan. 19.—(UP)—An army private testified before a court martial board today that Capt. J. Leland Bass, U. S. A., ordered him to remove alcohol in wholesale quantities from the army warehouse here and deliver it to civilians.

Bass is charged with violation of army regulations. Leaking "furniture" sent by him from Chicago to Mount Clemens, Mich., led to the charges.

Private Tony W. Moore, truck driver in the quartermaster corps, gave the first testimony tending to support charges that Bass's activities were linked with civilian operators in the "alcohol racket" here.

COLLEGE GIRL DISAPPEARANCE IS UNSOLVED

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Fear that the disappearance of Miss Frances St. John Smith from her classes at Smith college would resolve into a final mystery similar to that of Miss Alice Corbett in 1925, was expressed today.

Miss Smith has been missing from the school since Friday, January 13. Despite rumors that a girl, answering the description of Miss Smith, had been seen in many cities of the east, there has been no actual trace of her.

Such was the case of Miss Corbett. She disappeared on a Friday the thirteenth. There were rumors she had been seen in many cities, and the rumors all were traced. However there has never been a solution of the disappearance.

9,000 SHOE WORKERS PROTEST WAGE CUT

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Nearly 9,000 shoe workers were on strike here this afternoon in protest against wage reductions of 10 to 35 per cent.

Fifteen hundred workers who started the strike this morning were joined later in the day by some 7,500 others, leaving 3,000 of the city's 12,000 shoe operatives at work.

HEART STOPS BEATING; REVIVED BY ADRENALIN

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Five minutes after his heart stopped beating, Harry P. Robinson, 38, was revived by adrenalin yesterday and today physicians said he had a chance to live.

A throat infection, which poisoned his blood caused his heart to stop beating, physicians said.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Revived yesterday after his heart had stopped beating for five minutes, Harry P. Robinson, 38, was reclaimed by death today.

Poison from an infected throat entered his blood, causing his heart to stop beating, physicians said. He was revived with adrenalin and lived for 20 hours.

At 2:30 o'clock they drove into the little town in a small truck, and stopped in front of the home of Mrs. George Dodge. She heard them talking and became suspicious and awakened her son, Ted. He called Marshal Hyatt who hurried to the Dodge home.

Tracking the men to the office of the Central Lumber Company and thence to their waiting machine, the marshal found them ready to enter the car.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

"Get in that car and be damn quick about it," one of them replied, threatening him with a gun.

Marshal Hyatt was forced into the machine and it started with terrific speed toward Prescott, Wis.

Ted Dodge and Dr. E. O. Kalk who had a fast car gave chase.

"It was desperately hard driving through the snow," said Dr. Kalk, "but we arrived in Prescott a few minutes after the bandits had crossed the toll bridge for St. Paul. We telephoned the St. Paul police from Prescott."

A gun squad was dispatched to the chase when the call was received at headquarters here, and the car sped out on highway No. 3 to meet the bandits.

Evading the officers, the bandits were into St. Paul before officers knew it, and the latter then took up the chase.

At Fifth and Maria avenues the officers came upon the small truck and opened fire.

In the dim lights which the headlights of the two cars made through the falling snow the police saw a man standing up in the front seat. It later developed that this was Marshal Hyatt. The bandits had forced him to stand hoping to use him as a shield from police bullets.

Hyatt fell when a shot imbedded in his side and the bandits deserted the truck and fled. Detectives rushed to the machine. There they found Hyatt and Tom Plattner, St. Paul, lying in the machine, wounded. Plattner is believed to have driven the car.

Examination of the truck which carried the bandits from River Falls to St. Paul disclosed that 22 bullets had been fired into the cab, none of them, however, taking effect. These were bullets fired at the fleeing bandits by Dr. Kalk and Dodge in the chase.

ON EVE OF GOING HOME, GIRL JUMPS FROM 14TH FLOOR

New York, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Only a few minutes after telling two friends how glad she would be to return to her Tennessee home, Miss Stella Loeb, wearied by an arduous business career in New York, jumped from her fourteenth floor apartment and was killed.

Miss Loeb, who came to the city four years ago to become a buyer in a large department store, had resigned her position and packed her bags to take the next train to Kenton, Tenn.

STATE FAIR HAS AMBITIOUS BUILDING PROGRAM

$5,000,000 GROWTH IS NOW UNDER CONSIDERATION

ENLARGED EDUCATIONAL PLANS,
READJUSTMENT OF
PREMIUMS, ETC.

St. Paul, Jan. 19.—(UP)—A $5,000,000 building program for the Minnesota State Fair is being worked out as one of the large number of improvements planned, it was announced today by William F. Sanger, Windom, president.

Other improvements listed by Sanger include an enlarged educational program, readjustment of premiums in various departments, a campaign for increased entries, booking of super-attractions and a new method of presenting them, and the starting of an intensive publicity campaign with plans for a greater fair.

R. J. Pease, Birmingham, Ala., landscape architect, has been retained to work out details for the $5,000,000 program which the legislature will be asked to approve at its next session. It is planned to spread the building program over a number of years.

The plans include new barns, new agricultural and horticultural buildings, a new boys' and girls' headquarters, a mammoth industrial building and relocation of present buildings, streets, walks, street car loops and railway terminals.

Contact men will be sent out by the fair management to appear before various organizations throughout the state to explain in detail the plans for the bigger fair.

BOY'S BODY IS RECOVERED FROM MISSISSIPPI RIVER

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 19.—(UP)—The body of 4-year-old Donald Davidson was taken from the Mississippi river late Wednesday after a search of several days. The boy was drowned last Friday when he went on the ice with a playmate and fell through a hole. The drowning occurred near the boys' home at Spring Lake bottoms.

besides the truck in which Marshal Roy Hyatt was kidnapped here early today.

After probing several angles of the appearance of the automobiles here, local authorities said they believed the purpose of the bandits was not to raid a local institution, but rather was the meeting of two bandit gangs intent on perpetrating a raid on a bank, store or office in the Twin Cities.

It was pointed out that Hyatt was captured and taken to St. Paul in almost the same manner that the town marshal of Mora, Minn., was kidnapped and taken to Minneapolis two weeks ago.

That the bandits who last night entered River Falls are the same ones who raided several Mora business places was intimated by authorities, and the police of Mora have been asked for information they might have gained in the recent robberies.

MINNESOTA'S OWN ALL-AMERICAN TO APPEAR IN PERSON

COMES AS GREATEST SURPRISE
TO THEATER'S MOST POPULAR WEEK

SIX TO RECEIVE AUTOGRAPHED
FOOTBALLS FROM NATION'S IDOL

The biggest and best surprise of all!

To top the week of surprises offered by Wray Hiller, manager of local F. & R. theaters at the Lyceum this week, which to date have set a new mark in theater attendances here, the big surprise comes tomorrow night with the appearance in person of Herb Joesting, the Owatonna pile driver, twice selected All-American fullback by coaches throughout the country.

And a further attraction—Joesting has consented to autograph six regulation size footballs which will go to six lucky persons in the theater. Just how the coveted footballs will be distributed has not been decided. It was suggested that Herb autograph the balls and then kick each one into the audience to be grabbed and kept by the fortunate. If it is found that this will not be the most satisfactory method, the footballs will be given away by the drawing of numbers.

The Lyceum theater was able to secure the appearance of the internationally known figure through the courtesy of Finkelstein & Ruben, who have signed Herb for a number of stage appearances in the northwest.

After spurning professional football with its quick and golden rewards, turning down theater contracts by the score and refusing many other offers to capitalize on a great football record and national reputation, the gridiron idol of the nation has succumbed to the lure of the footlights, signing a contract with Finkelstein & Ruben to make personal appearances in a number of cities of the northwest.

However, the greatest football player of the year, still holding his education first, made his decision only after being assured that it would not put a stumbling block in the way of gaining a degree at the University. He has made arrangements with F. & R. for engagements only over the week-ends and one-night trips. Thus his career in front of the painted boards will not take him away from classes and he will study while travelling to and from engagements.

The Gopher "Thunderbolt" makes his stage debut with a specially prepared film of the Minnesota football team in action during the 1927 season. The film shows Herb and the "Fighting Gophers" in their terrific gridiron battle with Notre Dame and Michigan, fighting to victory over Wisconsin, North Dakota and Iowa and struggling to a tie with Indiana.

Mayor Frank E. Little of Brainerd and R. F. D. Cote of Camp Lincoln will give short introductory talks before Joesting makes his bow.

Joesting is a well known figure here but the people of Brainerd are always anxious to see him and cheer him for the great football record he has achieved, bringing fame to Minnesota and the 10,000 lakes district. Joesting was a councillor at Camp Lincoln for Boys at Hubert last summer and made many friends here.

Joesting's only appearance in the city will be at the two shows at the Lyceum theater tomorrow evening. Manager Hiller announced today. Joesting's next appearance will be at a theater in Fargo.

VICTORY ON NEW REVENUE BILL

Washington, Jan. 19.—(UP)—The treasury, having won its victory to delay congressional action on a new revenue bill until after March 15, today ordered internal revenue collectors to send out old type blanks for taxpayers to use in filing their income tax returns by that date.

Officials said that should the new tax measure contain a retroactive clause granting a tax cut on 1927 incomes, the treasury would allow reductions on installments due June 15, Sept. 15 and December 15.

No. 4

The convention of retail lumber dealers is on.

We are down here, as usual, making the rounds of the numerous exhibits, renewing acquaintances and absorbing a generous amount of new ideas.

When we get back to our office we'll sift the many ideas and suggestions that have been given us and perhaps we'll find a few of them worth trying.

One of the exhibits that would interest our readers very much is a section of a fir tree that was ready for market when Pizarro conquered Peru. It was 186 years old when Columbus discovered America and 470 years old at the time the Declaration of Independence was written. Looking at that venerable tree and recalling the world events that have passed during its lifetime one cannot help but realize that the age of man is short and his efforts puny when measured by the growth of this forest giant and the last two lines of a well known poem are recalled—

"Poems are written by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Quite a crowd was looking over the exhibit of "Mulehide" roofing and shingles and from the comments and conversations overheard we are mighty glad that we are their exclusive distributors for Brainerd. We have always felt that Mulehide was a superior roofing and after listening to statements made by other dealers who have sold it for years we are more than ever convinced of its value.

While strolling around I chanced to meet a party of men and their actions recalled a few lines of thought as I watched them—

"Three and twenty gentlemen feeling very dry
Went across to Canada to buy a case of rye,
When the case was opened they all began to sing
'We don't care for Volstead,
God save the King'."

TREASURY WINS VICTORY ON NEW REVENUE BILL

Washington, Jan. 19.—(UP)—The treasury, having won its victory to delay congressional action on a new revenue bill until after March 15, today ordered internal revenue collectors to send out old type blanks for taxpayers to use in filing their income tax returns by that date.

Officials said that should the new tax measure contain a retroactive clause granting a tax cut on 1927 incomes, the treasury would allow reductions on installments due June 15, Sept. 15 and December 15.

The convention of retail lumber dealers is on.

We are down here, as usual, making the rounds of the numerous exhibits, renewing acquaintances and absorbing a generous amount of new ideas.

When we get back to our office we'll sift the many ideas and suggestions that have been given us and perhaps we'll find a few of them worth trying.

One of the exhibits that would interest our readers very much is a section of a fir tree that was ready for market when Pizarro conquered Peru. It was 186 years old when Columbus discovered America and 470 years old at the time the Declaration of Independence was written. Looking at the section of that venerable tree and recalling the world events that have passed during its lifetime one cannot help but realize that the age of man is short and his efforts puny when measured by the growth of this forest giant and the last two lines of a well known poem are recalled—

"Poems are written by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Quite a crowd was looking over the exhibit of "Mulehide" roofing and shingles and from the comments and conversations overheard we are mighty glad that we are their exclusive distributors for Brainerd. We have always felt that Mulehide was a superior roofing and after listening to statements made by other dealers who have sold it for years we are more than ever convinced of its value.

While strolling around I chanced to meet a party of men and their actions recalled a few lines of thought as I watched them—
"Three and twenty gentlemen feeling very dry
Went across to Canada to buy a case of rye,
When the case was opened they all began to sing
'We don't care for Volstead, God save the King!'"

W. L. HARDING, FORMER GOVERNOR OF IOWA, ADDRESSES
FARM BUREAU

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—(UP)—Pooling their dollars, organizing and managing their own business will bring prosperity, farmers were told Wednesday night by W. L. Harding, former governor of Iowa addressing the closing session of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Association conference. "The farmer wants to get back into the selling game," Harding said. "The broad, tried, successful way is open to him as it has been to others. Labor, capital and manufacturing are incorporated, organized and have pooled their dollars. You should do the same to prosper."

"The ideal situation is a factory alongside the farm," Harding said. "The solution will not come through legislation because politicians as a rule are not good business men," he advised.

Members of the federation were urged to give unqualified indorsement to the Babcock plan of road paving by J. E. Reynolds, Mankato.

Chic Small Hats, Dainty Footwear

Innovations in Chapeau Trimmings; Shoes Are More Elaborate.

Milliners in recent seasons have been under a handicap, for while their workers struggled for new and more elaborate designs, women have clung tenaciously to the simple, unadorned cloche, which could not be turned into anything more graciously feminine by any flight of imagination. The best that has been possible, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, has been to vary it slightly in models that suggest the headgear of aviators, racing motorists, jockeys and yachtsmen—shapes that belong to sportsmen, but not to women of fashion. The cause is the demand for personal comfort, for the soft, feather-weight hat that fits gently the contour of the head has been very satisfactory for wear with bobbed hair.

The milliner has found it necessary to use diplomacy as well as creative art in luring his complacent clientele away from this new easy style. So the cloche, the vagabond, or whatever may be the variant of a close felt hat with an unwired brim, has been evolved through several stages of needlecraft—through tucking, wringing, folding and plaiting. But the more formal hat has now placed the informal cloche in its original class as part of the sports costume—and only the most skillful manipulation of details makes it suitable for a dressier appearance. The old foundation, a softly clinging shape, remains, but clever workmanship has worked the material into lines that suit every type of face and complement every style of dress.

Brim Not in Majority.

Few of the season's shapes are built to show the hair about the brow and temples, and fewer still have anything more than an apology for a brim. The trimming is moved forward this season to cover one or both ears with the material of the hat, a loop of ribbon or flat feather—a move that is mostly becoming to young faces.

Among the designs inspired by Parisian milliners is one from Marie Alphonse, a toque made of black felt. The material is arranged to form an irregular headline, crossing over one side of the forehead, and a large bow is fastened with a silver ring over one ear. This same artist makes a rather more tailored hat of brown cloth in which the brim in front turns directly back, empire fashion, and flares over the ears. It is trimmed with a bow of the same cloth at one side of the back. A slightly roughish model is presented by Agnes. It is a dark blue felt with long, pointed tabs like ears standing up in front. The crown is cut short across the brow and the brim extends in a flare at the sides and across the back.

The halo effect which came into popularity last season is still used effectively in several new designs, though varied in lines. A band of blue-cloth felt is added, which emphasizes the contour. In one of the latest models from Marie Alphonse this line is made circular and is formed by the brim. The hat turns back from the face, fitting closely at one side and flaring at the other. It has a softly draped, rather high crown, and to this the brim is caught in front with a silver ornament and two ribbon ends.

Reboux achieves a startling creation in a hat made of gray felt. The crown is rather high, and the brim, which is cut to turn back from the head at the sides and back, is twisted across the forehead and has one end turned up at one side.

Berets Novelty of Season.

Berets are the novelty of the season. These, like the felt vagabond, are adaptations of extremes, which fit a few wearers but are incongruous to many. The conventional halo is no further removed from the cowboy slouch than the swaggy beret is from the tam of the apache, but the latter has caught the fancy of the moment and is all the rage. The usual model is done in black velvet and is ample enough to fit becomingly the head of a woman of almost any age. In the more youthful shapes it is left loose and floppy to droop at one side or at the back.

Some of the French milliners are making the beret with very long full crowns, which are draped about the head and back of the neck. One prominent designer has made her beret of duvetyne, which is stretched to hold the folds in regular lines toward one side. Another makes a beret with the crown gathered very full to the band about the head. The slope of the goods—which in this model is black hatters' plush—is from the top of the crown, where the material is held with an ornament of crystal and onyx. The style of felt, which is of belgian origin, is given dignity in the conventional mode of the season by the use of handsome materials, trimmings, ornaments and a general toning down in lines. Most of the berets are made in black, but several charming models are shown in green and in purple velvet and duvetyne.

In the materials for hats the favorite this season is velvet, which is being used by all of the milliners not only for the more elaborate styles but for the simple everyday type. In response to a long and earnest appeal the champions of a more feminine feeling in all dress are seeing softer, more flattering shapes come back in millinery. This is due largely to the use of velvet. No hat, however, severely tailored the model, can be wholly unbecoming if it is done in velvet.

Fashions in Footwear.

The latest change in fashions in footwear, though radical and definite, has come about so gradually that it is not easily appreciated. The impossible of a few years ago has become not only possible but approved, and the most extravagant styles have come to be conventional. The swing from a matter-of-fact style to one that is theatrical by contrast brought out many extremes in form and color. These were less acceptable to women of taste than the more quiet modes which are now being shown in shoes for both daytime and evening wear.

Sports shoes are in a class by themselves. They are stout, common-sense boots and oxfords that serve for hiking, for country and wintry-weather town wear. They are all of the practical laced model, made of black, tan and brown leathers.

There are several novelties that answer storm requirements. The latest galoshes are high and trim and are to be had in colors as well as in black. A new shape in rubbers, modeled after the Russian boot, is very chic and picturesque. It is seen in black, with scarlet, green or white tops, and also with these color combinations reversed. Regular rubbers coming from Paris are made in jade green, red, gray or blue.

For daytime street dress the strap sandal or colonial is worn, and is made of patent leather, the heavier reptile skins or suede. Black is very fashionable at the moment and is bringing in black hosiery to supersede the light colors and "nude" shades. One of the smartest among the new models is a one-strap shoe of heavy black alligator hide. Another is a colonial shape, which has a high tongue and is finished with a large buckle made of suede and patent kid combined in tiny stripes.

For sheer beauty the latest things in evening shoes quite eclipse any of the fashions shown before. There have never been as many different materials suitable for dainty footwear. Among them this season are satins, kid, brocade, velvet, lame, petit point and suede of the quality of fine gloves. The new opalescent kid slippers are so colorful in themselves that they are seldom ornamented. The transparent velvets in the most delicate shades are either without buckles, and sometimes jewel-studded trimmings or have beautiful jeweled heels. Most of the elaborate ornaments for evening slippers, however, are shown in plain satin or metal cloth.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water acids and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

BACKACHES WERE SLOWLY KILLING ME

"I was almost laid out with the terrible pains and stitches in my back. I had just about given up hope of getting relief when a neighbor gave me a bottle of 'St. Jacob's Oil' to rub on my back. I got immediate relief and have enjoyed perfect comfort since."

It's a pity that everyone with Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Neuritis doesn't know about "St. Jacob's Oil". Its action is amazing. Without burning or blistering the skin, it penetrates to the affected part and draws out the pain like magic. If you want to know what relief is, go to your druggist and get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" and apply it to any aching spot.

which is cut to turn back from the head at the sides and back, is twisted across the forehead and has one end turned up at one side.

Berets Novelty of Season.
Berets are the novelty of the season. These, like the felt vagabond, are adaptations of extremes, which fit a few wearers but are incongruous to many. The conventional holo is no further removed from the cowboy slouch than the swaggy beret is from the tam of the apache, but the latter has caught the fancy of the moment and is all the rage. The usual model is done in black velvet and is ample enough to fit becomingly the head of a woman of almost any age. In the more youthful shapes it is left loose and floppy to droop at one side or at the back.

Some of the French milliners are making the beret with very long full crowns, which are draped about the head and back of the neck. One prominent designer has made her beret of duvetyne, which is stitched to hold the folds in regular lines toward one side. Another makes a beret with the crown gathered very full to the band about the head. The slope of the goods—which in this model is black battons' plush—is from the top of the crown, where the material is held with an ornament of crystal and onyx. The style of felt, which is of bohemian origin, is given dignity in the conventional mode of the season by the use of handsome materials, trimmings, ornaments and a general feeling down in lines. Most of the berets are made in black, but several charming models are shown in green and in purple velvet and duvetyne.

In the materials for hats the favorite this season is velvet, which is being used by all of the milliners not only for the more elaborate styles but for the simple everyday type. In response to a long and earnest appeal the champions of a more feminine feeling in all dress are seeing softer, more flattering shapes come back in millinery. This is due largely to the use of velvet. No hat, however, severely tailored the model, can be wholly unbecoming if it is done in velvet.

Fashions in Footwear.
The latest change in fashions in footwear, though radical and definite, has come about so gradually that it is not easily appreciated. The impossible of a few years ago has become not only possible but approved, and the most extravagant styles have come to be conventional. The swing from a matter-of-fact style to one that is theatrical by contrast brought out many extremes in form and color. These were less acceptable to women of taste than the more quiet modes which are now being shown in shoes for both daytime and evening wear.

Sports shoes are in a class by themselves. They are stout, common-sense boots and oxfords that serve for hiking, for country and wintry-weather town wear. They are all of the practical laced model, made of black, tan and brown leathers.

There are several novelties that answer storm requirements. The latest galoshes are high and trim and are to be had in colors as well as in black. A new shape in rubbers, modeled after the Russian boot, is very chic and picturesque. It is seen in black, with scarlet, green or white tops, and also with these color combinations reversed. Regular rubbers coming from Paris are made in jade green, red, gray or blue.

For daytime street dress the strap sandal or colonial is worn, and is made of patent leather, the heavier reptile skins or suede. Black is very fashionable at the moment and is bringing in black hosiery to supercede the light colors and "nude" shades. One of the smartest among the new models is a one-strap shoe of heavy black alligator hide. Another is a colonial shape, which has a high tongue and is finished with a large buckle made of suede and patent kid combined in tiny stripes.

For sheer beauty the latest things in evening shoes quite eclipse any of the fashions shown before. There have never been as many different materials suitable for dainty footwear. Among them this season are satins, kid, brocade, velvet, lame, petit point and suede of the quality of fine gloves. The new opalescent kid slippers are so colorful in themselves that they are seldom ornamented. The transparent velvets in the most delicate shades are either without buckles, and sometimes jewel-studded trimming or have beautiful jeweled heels. Most of the elaborate ornaments for evening slippers, however, are shown in plain satin or metal cloth.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You
Have Not Been Drinking
Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

It's a pity that everyone with Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Neuritis doesn't know about "St. Jacob's Oil". Its action is amazing. Without burning or blistering the skin, it penetrates to the affected part and draws out the pain like magic. If you want to know what relief is, go to your druggist and get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" and apply it to any aching spot.

CHEER UP!

For the benefit of those who may have decided that the world has gone entirely to the devil, we append the following items of interest having to do with yesterday's happenings throughout the country. None of the items has been printed heretofore:

Seventeen thousand high school honor graduates, not one of whom ever kidnapped, strangled or dissected a human body, were home for Christmas.

Forty-two million persons went auto riding without being killed in collisions.

Nearly 778,000 motorists, none of whom was or should have been arrested for drunken driving, motored into the country.

Ninety-five thousand pairs of lovers had quarrels in which nobody was slain.

There were more than 109,999,000 men and women in the United States who did not take own life in fit of despondency.

More than 775,775 American homes did not burn to ground.

There were approximately 890,991 furnaces that did not explode, killing attendant and doing heavy property damage.

More than 1,000,000 tornadoes failed to show during the day.

Nearly 32,444,444 women were not found stabbed to death after keeping blind date.

A grand total of 888,888 trusted bank cashiers did not flee with the institution's funds.

There were more than 109,999,999 persons for whom police had laid no drag-net.

Authorities are not combing countryside for at least 109,998,998 persons.

Practically the entire population of the country failed to ask admission to poor house.

More than 335,000 babies in the Mississippi valley alone did not smother while mother hangs clothes on line in backyard.

Practically every citizen of the United States neither died nor was found brutally murdered.

More than 109,999,999 persons did not slay selves after finding lovers unfaithful.—Omaha World-Herald.

LAUGH AND BE HEALTHY

How many physicians are there who insist that their patients must laugh heartily a number of times a day, even though they may have to laugh without very much reason? Of course, if there is a good joke that tempts to laughter then the laughter is ever so much more spontaneous, is deeper, ventilates the lungs, stimulates the heart and sets the blood coursing through the body and makes all the organs do their work better.

Laughter not only does the body good, but it does the mind good. It has been said that if you pull down the corners of your lips and keep them down, after a time you feel as glum inside as you look from the outside to those who may happen to be gazing at you. If, on the other hand, you turn the corners of your lips up and keep them there it becomes impossible to feel glum inside after a while.

The James-Lange theory of emotions was that the body is affected first by the emotions and then by the mind. They said we did not feel bad and then cry, but something tempted the tears to come from our tear glands and then we felt bad. On the other hand, something titillated us to laugh with our bodies and then we felt joyful and free hearted interiorly.

This theory has not been generally accepted by psychologists but undoubtedly it has a germ of truth in it. There is a very old proverb which says "laugh and grow fat." It is well known that people who laugh actually do grow fat rather readily.—Dr. Welch in American Medicine.

LACK OF "SKYPIECE"

BRAINERD at times has possessed people who went bareheaded the year around and they noticed no ill effects from this so-called exposure. We know one man who followed the practice, in the hope of restoring his hair.

The college lad who saunters about hatless even in inclement weather is not endangering his health, according to Dr. W. A. Mowry, head of the student health department at the State University of Wisconsin.

The bareheaded students seem to be as free from colds as the canopied ones. Although the fad may not be beneficial, it is comfortable, he says.

Summer, in our Brainerd Lake Region, finds practically all golfers, ladies and gentlemen, playing bareheaded. True, they occasionally wear a shade for their eyes, but nothing to protect the top of their heads. Becoming gradually inured, nothing is better than a sun bath.

THAT story of bringing Mrs. Ruth Snyder back to life after electrocution is at best only a fancy, for after one is electrocuted there is no chance for restoration of the life spark. It is like the stories associated with hanging which claimed that some criminals who did not have their necks broken by the trap were sometimes resuscitated by friends who quickly claimed the body and administered restoratives. But prison officials are more than exact in seeing that their duties are properly performed and after the hanging or execution doctors examine and pronounce the criminals dead.

WELL, the winter is about half over. If the thaw-out in the spring is a gradual one, side roads will last, but if we have another breakup like last year there will be a calamity so far as gravel and dirt roads are concerned.

VOLUMINOUS reports of government departments, compiled and published at great expense, are seldom read by the average citizen. He depends on a newspaper to condense them and give him salient features.

ON January 24 the Chamber of Commerce gives the farmer visitors a luncheon. They will hear dairying discussed by an expert from the university farm.

A SUBMARINE must be vigilant in peace time and war time to avoid a suicidal collision.

EVERY man is entitled to his opinion. That's why there are so many arguments.

SYNOPSIS

Failing eyesight has driven Jeffrey Shore, young architect, into hiding in the city slums and there he meets Mickey Grogan whose cheerful optimism helps him back to life. Mickey introduces Jeffrey to Winnie Davidson and she decides to help him. While Winnie and Jeffrey are working on sketches in her apartment, Al Neevers, her pugilist admirer, calls and is enraged by finding another man with the woman he considers "his girl." Winnie forces Neevers to leave and then confesses her love to Jeffrey. This, however, merely adds to his despondency as he believes he can never overcome the handicap of blindness. He is brooding in his attic room when Mickey enters with Susan Dale, his little playmate who has just been deserted by her foster mother.

"Lemme see 'em, will ya, Jeff?" asked the boy. He took a chance of drawing the attention of the landlady to the attic and switched on the light long enough to stare at the plan of the drawing that Jeff reluctantly brought forth from his pocket. All these wonderful rooms and conveniences! All this beauty of drawing, and Jeff was ashamed of it! "Holy Gee, this is great!" said Mickey. "Why I bet Mr. Cabel would go nuts about dis. Gee, Jeff, I don't see what you're mopein' about."

"It's the cat's all right," said Susan, straining her eyes over Mickey's shoulder. "Jeff, ya sure know your onions."

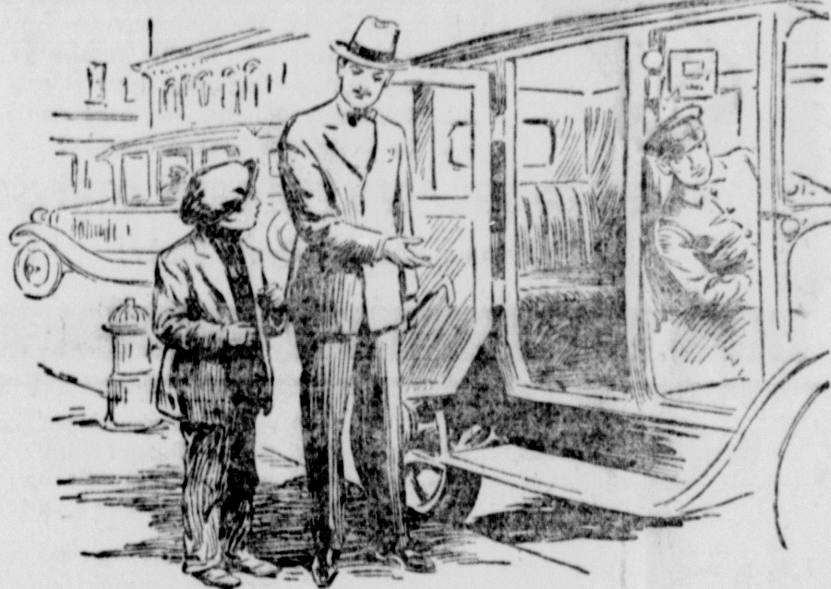

"What do children like you know about it?" asked Jeff, but not unkindly. He reached for the sketches and put them back into his coat-pocket. "The thing is hopeless. Hopeless!" he sighed wretchedly.

Mickey had never seen Jeff so low and he was secretly alarmed.

Outside he looked once more at the address he had written on the piece of paper. "2472 Park View Drive. Gee, dat's a long ways from here an' I ain't even got a nickel fer carefare." Mickey wondered how he could have been such a fool as to leave the house without asking Winnie for the money. But going back meant losing just so much valuable time. He hesitated for a moment wondering what he had better do when a taxicab slid up in front of a house across the street. Like a streak, Mickey darted across just in time to hear the fare address the driver, "Park View Drive." What luck! Perhaps fortune was beginning to shower him with her most golden smile at last! Mickey sneaked to the rear of the taxi and doubled himself up inside the spare tire just as the driver threw in the clutch and the car began moving away.

Mickey had no inkling of what address on Park View Drive the taxi was driving towards, but he trusted to luck. He might have to walk a great distance when the taxi reached its destination—Park View Drive was endless in its length. He reached nervously into his coat pocket, and was reassured to discover that he had not lost Jeff's sketches. That would have been a fine climax to the adventure! As the taxi gathered speed and bumped over ruts in the road, Mickey's body became dreadfully cramped and the tire seemed to be cutting, like a knife, into his shoulder. He felt that at any moment, he would cry out with the pain and thus draw the driver's attention. He pressed his lips together tightly and resolved to bear it, even if the pain killed him.

"Crooked says," he whispered to himself, "dat ya gotta go 'trot a lot o' sufferin' in this world afore

"Gee, you're a real gent."

if this was the way Jeff was going to act, nothing would ever come of these plans! In a moment of depression, the young architect might burn them or tear them into bits. Then what would become of him? He would have to go back to the soup line again, and he and Winnie would never be able to marry. Mickey wanted to cry at the thought of his friend's future. Had their meeting been a vain one, and was nothing to come of it? The boy began to cast about wildly in his mind for some plan to help his friend. Then an idea so wonderful, so exciting came to him that he could hardly restrain his eager young body for its impatience.

Susan was talking to Jeff, trying in her humble little way to cheer the young architect. "Look at me," she said. "I just lost me home an' me meal-ticket. But ya don't see me a-settin' 'round an' singin' da Weary Blues to meself. Brace up, big fella. Keep your eyes off da floor!"

Susan was beginning to get Jeff's attention, and Mickey saw his chance to act. It was a chance that might never be his again! The boy's hand groped cautiously towards Jeff's coat. Inch by inch he let his small hand slip into the architect's pocket, and just as slowly and carefully he withdrew the plans. No sooner had he done so than Jeff turned about to look at him, and Mickey hid the plans behind his back.

Susan looked up inquiringly as Mickey got to his feet and began edging towards the door. She followed him and he whispered in her ear. "Git back, fer Pete's sake. Keep talkin' to him an' don't pay any 'tention to me. I got somethin' awful 'portant ter do. An' if ya mind your p's and q's well all be ridin' 'round in Rolls Royces." Then he darted out of the door before Jeff could notice his departure.

Mickey hustled down the stairs to the floor below and stopped to knock impatiently at Winnie's door. When the girl answered, Mickey looked up at her out of his great eyes and asked in a rush of words, "Say, Winnie, where does that boss o' yours hang out—where does he live?"

"What boss?" Winnie was bewildered.

"Da guy what owns da factry. Mr. Cabel."

"The number is 2472 Park View Drive. But why on earth do you want to know, Mickey?"

"Oh, nut'n. I just got an idea, dat's all." He began to scribble the address down on a piece of paper.

"What's the great idea, Mickey?"

"See ya later, Winnie," and with a vague wave of his hands, Mickey grabbed the bannisters and slid unlimbly down the stairs.

from you
Even Spacing, Calmness.

Even f, Above and Below Line, Calm.

We all love a certain amount of calmness in a friend or a sweetheart, if it does not go so far as to become mental idleness or a perpetually phlegmatic disposition.

Real calmness is a balanced disposition which can view exciting things and not lose its head. There is a balance in the writing, as there is in the disposition.

The spacing will be even between the letters. Even though there is vivid imagination and strong energy and emphasis in the nature, this spacing will remain even between the words and letters.

Again, the looped letters like f, will be balanced above and below the line. The letters like g and y will be as low below the line as are the letters h, l, etc., above the line.

The small letters in a word will be of even height throughout the word.

The writing of the very calm person is not very large as a rule. There is a compact appearance, and the writing is minus scrolls, which speak of approbation. No very approbative person, worrying about what the other fellow thinks, can be genuinely calm in the emergency.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

JUNIOR PROM AT UNIVERSITY LED BY HOVDE

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—(UP)—The Junior prom at the University of Minnesota next month will be led by Fred Hovde, Devils Lake, N. D., who is a member of the Gophers' football team.

Hovde was elected Wednesday. Other officers of the social affair are Lester Holstad, Minneapolis, vice president; Maurine Schmitz, Stewart, secretary, and Kenneth Zimmerman, Breckenridge, treasurer.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE RETURNS TO CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 19.—(UP)—President Coolidge returned to the capital today after his first presidential trip outside of the continental United States.

The special train bearing President and Mrs. Coolidge on the last lap of their trip back from Havana, Cuba, where the chief executive assisted in opening the sixth Pan-American conference, reached the union station at 7:12 a. m.

In contrast with the ovations given cities through which he journeyed him by the Cubans and by the American on his five-day trip, there was no crowd to greet the president here. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went to their automobiles and were taken immediately to the White House.

Mr. Coolidge was cheerful over the result of his long trip. He was pictured as hopeful that the Pan-American nations are convinced that the United States' policy toward them is one of cooperation and mutual understanding.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Takes the "static" out of buying

There's a peculiar bug sweeping over the world today that has already sunk its teeth into millions.

Its name is Radio.

No one is immune. If it hasn't bitten you yet, your time will come. For some months you will lie absolutely helpless in its power. You may later recover from its effects sufficiently to go about your daily tasks and attend to your social duties, but you will never fully recover.

The experience is indescribably delightful and the pleasure never-ending—if— There's quite an "if" in radio.

We repeat, the pleasure is never-ending, if you get a good radio receiver and good accessories.

And you overcome the "if" by careful reading of radio advertising. Like everything else, good radio sets and accessories are the advertised ones. It doesn't pay to advertise the worthless.

Advertising will help you in radio as it helps you in selecting intrinsic value in everything else. You can rest assured that anything which is continuously advertised, whether it be a radio set or a can of asparagus, has stood the test.

Radio works best in the dark—but there's no need to buy in the dark.

Let the light of advertising show you the right road to radio satisfaction. Read advertising regularly

The James-Lange theory of emotions was that the body is affected first by the emotions and then by the mind. They said we did not feel bad and then cry, but something tempted the tears to come from our tear glands and then we felt bad. On the other hand, something titillated us to laugh with our bodies and then we felt joyful and free hearted interiorly.

This theory has not been generally accepted by psychologists but undoubtedly it has a germ of truth in it. There is a very old proverb which says "laugh and grow fat." It is well known that people who laugh actually do grow fat rather readily.—Dr. Welch in American Medicine.

LACK OF "SKYPIECE"

BRAINERD at times has possessed people who went bareheaded the year around and they noticed no ill effects from this so-called exposure. We know one man who followed the practice, in the hope of restoring his hair.

The college lad who saunters about hatless even in inclement weather is not endangering his health, according to Dr. W. A. Mowry, head of the student health department at the State University of Wisconsin.

The bareheaded students seem to be as free from colds as the canopied ones. Although the fad may not be beneficial, it is comfortable, he says.

Summer, in our Brainerd Lake Region, finds practically all golfers, ladies and gentlemen, playing bareheaded. True, they occasionally wear a shade for their eyes, but nothing to protect the top of their heads. Becoming gradually inured, nothing is better than a sun bath.

THAT story of bringing Mrs. Ruth Snyder back to life after electrocution is at best only a fancy, for after one is electrocuted there is no chance for restoration of the life spark. It is like the stories associated with hanging which claimed that some criminals who did not have their necks broken by the trap were sometimes resuscitated by friends who quickly claimed the body and administered restoratives. But prison officials are more than exact in seeing that their duties are properly performed and after the hanging or execution doctors examine and pronounce the criminals dead.

WELL, the winter is about half over. If the thaw-out in the spring is a gradual one, side roads will last, but if we have another breakup like last year there will be a calamity so far as gravel and dirt roads are concerned.

SYNOPSIS

Falling eyesight has driven Jeffry Shore, young architect, into hiding in the city slums and there he meets Mickey Grogan whose cheerful optimism helps win him back to life. Mickey introduces Jeffry to Winnie Davidson and she decides to help him. While Winnie and Jeffry are working on sketches in her apartment, Al Nevers, her pugilist admirer, calls and is enraged by finding another man with the woman he considers "his girl." Winnie forces Nevers to leave and then confesses her love to Jeffry. This, however, merely adds to his despondency as he believes he can never overcome the handicap of blindness. He is brooding in his attic room when Mickey enters with Susan Dale, his little playmate who has just been deserted by her foster mother.

"Lemme see 'em, will ya, Jeff?" asked the boy. He took a chance of drawing the attention of the landlady to the attic and switched on the light long enough to stare at the plan of the drawing that Jeff reluctantly brought forth from his pocket. All these wonderful rooms and conveniences! All this beauty of drawing, and Jeff was ashamed of it! "Holy, Gee, this is great!" said Mickey. "Why I bet Mr. Cabel would go nuts about dis. Gee, Jeff, I don't see what you're moping about."

"It's the cat's all right," said Susan, straining her eyes over Mickey's shoulder. "Jeff, ya sure know your owners." "What do children like you know about it?" asked Jeff, but not unkindly. He reached for the sketches and put them back into his coat-pocket. "The thing is hopeless. Hopeless!" he sighed wretchedly.

Mickey had never seen Jeff so low and he was secretly alarmed.

"Gee, you're a real gent."

If this was the way Jeff was going to act, nothing would ever come of these plans! In a moment of depression, the young architect might burn them or tear them into bits. Then what would become of him? He would have to go back to the soup line again, and he and Winnie would never be able to marry. Mickey wanted to cry at the thought of his friend's future. Had their meeting been a vain one, and was nothing to come of it? The boy began to cast about wildly in his mind for some plan to help his friend. Then an idea so wonderful, so exciting came to him that he could hardly restrain his eager young body for its impatience.

Susan was talking to Jeff, trying to cheer him up. "Look at me," she said. "I just lost me home an' me meal-ticket. But ya don't see me a-settin' 'round an' singin' da Weary Blues to meself. Brace up, big fella. Keep your eyes off da floor!"

Susan was beginning to get Jeff's attention, and Mickey saw his chance to act. It was a chance that might never be his again! The boy's hand groped cautiously towards Jeff's coat. Inch by inch he let his small hand slip into the architect's pocket, and just as slowly and carefully he withdrew the plans. No sooner had he done so than Jeff turned about to look at him, and Mickey hid the plans behind his back.

Susan looked up inquiringly as Mickey got to his feet and began edging towards the door. She followed him and he whispered in her ear, "Get back, for Pete's sake. Keep talkin' to him an' don't pay any 'tention to me. I got somethin' awful 'portant ter do. An' if ya mind your p's and q's we'll all be ridin' 'round in Rolls Royces." Then he darted out of the door before Jeff could notice his departure.

Mickey hustled down the stairs to the floor below and stopped to knock impatiently at Winnie's door. When the girl answered, Mickey looked up at her out of his great eyes and asked in a rush of words, "Say, Winnie, where does that boss o' yours hang out—where does he live?" "What boss?" Winnie was bewildered. "Da guy what owns da factry. Mr. Cabel." "The number is 2472 Park View Drive. But why on earth do you want to know, Mickey?" "Oh, nut'n. I just got an idea, dat's all." He began to scribble the address down on a piece of paper.

"What's the great idea, Mickey?" "See ya later, Winnie," and with a vague wave of his hands, Mickey grabbed the banisters and slid nimbly down the stairs.

Outside he looked once more at the address he had written on the piece of paper. "2472 Park View Drive. Gee, dat's a long ways from here an' I aint even got a nickel fer carfare." Mickey wondered how he could have been such a fool as to leave the house without asking Winnie for the money. But going back meant losing just so much valuable time. He hesitated for a moment wondering what he had better do when a taxicab slid up in front of a house across the street. Like a streak, Mickey darted across just in time to hear the fare address the driver. "Park View Drive." What luck! Perhaps fortune was beginning to shower him with her most golden smile at last! Mickey sneaked to the rear of the taxi and doubled himself up inside the spare tire just as the driver threw in the clutch and the car began moving away.

Mickey had no inkling of what address on Park View Drive the taxi was driving towards, but he trusted to luck. He might have to walk a great distance when the taxi reached its destination—Park View Drive was endless in its length. He reached nervously into his coat pocket, and was reassured to discover that he had not lost Jeff's sketches. That would have been a fine climax to the adventure! As the taxi gathered speed and bumped over ruts in the road, Mickey's body became dreadfully cramped and the tire seemed to be cutting, like a knife, into his shoulder. He felt, that at any moment, he would cry out with the pain and thus draw the driver's attention. He pressed his lips together tightly and resolved to bear it, even if the pain killed him.

"Crooked says," he whispered to himself, "dat ya gotta go 'tween a lot o' sufferin' in this world afore

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

Calmness

Try to do
Even Spacing, Calmness.

Even f, Above and Below Line, Calm.

We all love a certain amount of calmness in a friend or a sweetheart, if it does not go so far as to become mental idleness or a perpetually phlegmatic disposition.

Real calmness is a balanced disposition which can view exciting things and not lose its head. There is a balance in the writing, as there is in the disposition.

The spacing will be even between the letters. Even though there is vivid imagination and strong energy and emphasis in the nature, this spacing will remain even between the words and letters.

Again, the looped letters like f, will be balanced above and below the line. The letters like g and y will be as low below the line as are the letters h, l, e, above the line.

The small letters in a word will be of even height throughout the word.

The writing of the very calm person is not very large as a rule. There is a compact appearance, and the writing is minus scrolls, which speak of approbation. No very approbative person, worrying about what the other fellow thinks, can be genuinely calm in the emergency.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

JUNIOR PROM AT UNIVERSITY LED BY HOVDE

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—The junior prom at the University of Minnesota next month will be led by Fred Hovde, Devils Lake, N. D., who is a member of the Gophers' football team.

Hovde was elected Wednesday. Other officers of the social affair are Lester Bolstad, Minneapolis, vice president; Maurine Schmitz, Stewart, secretary, and Kenneth Zimmerman, Breckenridge, treasurer.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE RETURNS TO CAPITAL

Washington, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—President Coolidge returned to the capital today after his first presidential trip outside of the continental United States.

The special train bearing President and Mrs. Coolidge on the last lap of their trip back from Havana, Cuba, where the chief executive assisted in opening the sixth Pan-American conference, reached the union station at 7:12 a. m.

In contrast with the ovations given him by the Cubans and by the American cities through which he journeyed on his five-day trip, there was no crowd to greet the president here. Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge went to their automobiles and were taken immediately to the White House.

Mr. Coolidge was cheerful over the result of his long trip. He was pictured as hopeful that the Pan-American nations are convinced that the United States' policy toward them is one of cooperation and mutual understanding.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Takes the "static" out of buying

There's a peculiar bug sweeping over the world today that has already sunk its teeth into millions.

Its name is Radio.

No one is immune. If it hasn't bitten you yet, your time will come. For some months you will lie absolutely helpless in its power. You may later recover from its effects sufficiently to go about your daily tasks and attend to your social duties, but you will never fully recover.

The experience is indescribably delightful and the pleasure never-ending—if— There's quite an "if" in radio.

We repeat, the pleasure is never-ending, if you get a good radio receiver and good accessories.

And you overcome the "if" by careful reading of radio advertising. Like everything else, good radio sets and accessories are the advertised ones. It doesn't pay to advertise the worthless.

Advertising will help you in radio as it helps you in selecting intrinsic value in everything else. You can rest assured that anything which is continuously advertised, whether it be a radio set or a can of asparagus, has stood the test.

Radio works best in the dark—but there's no need to buy in the dark.

Let the light of advertising show you the right road to radio satisfaction. Read advertising regularly

MOOSE LAKE GIANTS SCORE VICTORY OVER LEGION TEAM

COMBINE RUSHES TO BETTER ADVANTAGE IN THE FINAL PERIOD

TEAMS BATTLE ON EVEN FOOTING IN FIRST HALF; GAME ENDS 31 TO 12

CAPTAIN HEIKKINEN LEADS HIS MATES IN SCORING; GUARDS WORK WELL

Accuracy in shooting coupled with superior scoring combinations gave the Moose Lake five last evening victory over the local American Legion team only after the locals had provided stiff competition. The score was 31 to 12 but was no indication of the play. The game was not one-sided but provided fast basketball, with the visitors working in better combination around the cage.

It was any team's victory up to the third quarter. As the whistle sounded for the half, the Moose Lake aggregation was one point up on the locals by the score of 9 to 8.

During the first half the score zigzagged with the Brainerd team getting in more shots at the basket but failing to score heavily.

Captain Bill Heikkinen came into his own by starting out the scoring for the locals. He was given a great ovation by the fans.

Whitlock, pivot man for the Legion team left his scoring eye at home for once but was, as usual, in form in breaking up the enemy's rushes.

Moose Lake had a decided advantage over Brainerd. The players towered over the six-foot mark and their attack was chiefly an aerial one. The regulars on the Brainerd team weakened in the last period and were forced to give way to the reserves.

Lowe, O. Heikkinen and DeRocher gave a great exhibition of guarding on the defense.

Swanson took honors in scoring, sinking six baskets while Gay chalked up four to his credit. The defeat was the first on the home floor and a large house witnessed the best brand of independent basketball this season.

New York, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—The Army-Naval controversy over responsibility for the breach which led to cancellation of the annual service academy football game was resumed today with a statement from West Point.

Replying to the suggestion from Annapolis that the way still was open for a game, if the Army would accept the Navy's eligibility requirements, Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the military academy, pointed out that Annapolis authorities signed a four year contract for Army-Naval games before insisting upon the three year rule for athletes.

The only break came when the Navy tried afterwards to impose the three year rule, to which the Army could not agree, Fleming said.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Just when it seemed that baseball would have to come into its own without the artificial stimulus of scandal, the New York Giants up and traded Rogers Hornsby to the Boston Braves for a couple of second raters.

Francis Hogan and Jimmy Welch may deserve more honorable mention than that, but the fact remains that Hornsby—judged by local standards—was worth a dozen of each.

John McGraw long has had his eye on Hogan, whom he regards as one of the ablest young backstops in the major leagues. The Giants were badly in need of a left fielder, and Welch may fill the bill.

But consider the man whose place this pair from the Hub is expected to fill. Hornsby was a ball player who was believed to be destined for greater things.

Already he had managed the St. Louis Cardinals when that ball club won its first pennant and world's championship. Following that success, Rogers came to New York in exchange for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring.

Ostensibly the purpose in bringing Hornsby to New York was that he might some day become manager of the Giants.

As second baseman of McGraw's club in 1927, Hornsby played magnificent baseball. He led his club in that all-important factor of "runs driven in," and easily earned the salary of $40,000 which the Giants were reported to be paying him.

It will be recalled that when Rogers joined the Giants a year ago, he signed a two-year contract. Consequently, Judge Fuchs has had to take over "The Rajah" at the latter's own terms.

This is no great hardship upon the eminent Hub jurist. There are at least six other National League magnates who would be glad to do the same. John J. McGraw is the exception.

While planning to build a pennant winner for 1928, McGraw does not include Hornsby in his scheme of things. Hogan—yes. A most able young catcher still less than 21 years of age. Welch, an outfielder, who may, under Giant tutelage, find a regular berth.

The transfer of Hornsby to the Braves is a source of infinite satisfaction to Judge Fuchs. With Dr. Eddie Farrell at shortstop and Hornsby at second, the Boston Braves will have one of the best keystone combinations in baseball.

As for the Giants, the departure of Hornsby presents an opportunity for Andy Cohen, the Jewish infielder, to show what he can do at second base. Cohen was one of the best batmen in the International League last season, and returns for his second try with the Giants in 1928.

Frank Hogan, a hitter as well as a brainy young catcher, may strengthen the Giants just where they need it most.

But the fact remains that the transfer of Hornsby remains one of the most interesting and strangest incidents of modern baseball.

AS ADDED ATTRACTION TO ITS FAIR

EXPECTED TO HAVE OLYMPIC GAMES FOR ITS WORLD'S FAIR

OLYMPICS ONLY ONE OF SEVERAL SPORT HEADLINES

By BERT M. DENBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Chicago today planned the greatest sports carnival in the world's history, to be held in 1933 as an added attraction to the world's fair.

Plans are under way to hold the Olympic games here at that time. Chairman Rufus C. Dawes of the fair committee, has been authorized to appoint a sports committee to negotiate for the games.

The Olympics would be only one of several sport headlines. A heavy-weight championship bout would be another. The world's series and an intersectional game between two leading football teams would add interest. It was also hoped to stage a horse-race which would compare in class with the other attractions. The dates of the fair, under present plans would be May 1 to Nov. 1. This length of time would allow all the planned sports events to be held during their respective seasons.

However, in order to obtain the Olympics, a postponement of one year of the 1932 games must be made. If Chicago can bring about this postponement the 1933 Olympics would afford the first opportunity which the United States has had to see the games since 1904, when they were held in St. Louis, the only city in this country which has sponsored them.

The fair's estimated attendance of 80,000,000 would insure the financial success of any sport classics offered.

If it becomes impossible to obtain the Olympics, fair committee members said they will stage a sports carnival which will compare with the international classic. Athletes from all over the world would be brought here.

It was pointed out that Soldiers' Field, Chicago's vast athletic grounds and Lake Michigan furnish the best sites for both land and aquatic contests in the world.

INDICTED FOR TRANSPORTING FIGHT FILMS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—After once being convicted and sentenced to jail on the charge, William Sievers, former theater manager, was indicted by the federal grand jury for transporting Tunney-Dempsey fight films from Chicago to St. Louis.

On his original sentence to three months in jail, Sievers moved for a new trial in federal court on the grounds his trial should have been conducted on an indictment instead of bare information.

The federal court ordered the district attorney's office to proceed accordingly with an indictment.

BLACK GOLD, DERBY WINNER, PASSES ON

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—Black Gold, the little dark horse who thrilled 75,000 people at Churchill Downs in 1924, when he won a Kentucky Derby, has passed on.

He was destroyed after he broke a fore-leg during the running of the Salome handicap here yesterday.

As he came into the head of the stretch, Black Gold went down. Jockey D. Emery was thrown over his head. The rest of the field thundered past. Black Gold got up, one leg dangling, and tried to go with them. He fell and tried again. The last time he failed to get up. A few minutes later he was shot.

Retaining Youth

Youth is not a time in life; it is a state of mind. People grow old only by deserting their ideals and by outgrowing the consciousness of youth. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. You are as old as your doubt; your fear; your despair. The way to keep young is to keep your faith young. Keep your self-confidence young. Keep your hope young.—Exchange.

CHICAGO PLANNING GREAT SPORTS CARNIVAL IN 1933

ARMY-NAVY CONTROVERSY IS UNSETTLED

New York, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—The Army-Navy controversy over responsibility for the breach which led to cancellation of the annual service academy football game was resumed today with a statement from West Point.

Replying to the suggestion from Annapolis that the way still was open for a game, if the Army would accept the Navy's eligibility requirements, Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the military academy, pointed out that Annapolis authorities signed a four year contract for Army-Navy games before insisting upon the three year rule for athletes.

The only break came when the Navy tried afterwards to impose the three year rule, to which the Army could not agree, Fleming said.

ADVISES FARMERS NOT TO INCREASE COTTON ACREAGE

Washington, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—Sec. of Agriculture Jardine today announced the agriculture department would advise farmers not to increase their cotton acreage this year.

He said that in past years it has been the tendency of cotton growers to increase acreage whenever prices are up but that the 1927 plantings were sufficient for the country's needs.

WINS MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP IN AGRICULTURE

Minneapolis, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—Loren McMartin, Owatonna, won the Leroy Cady memorial scholarship in agriculture, it was announced today at the University of Minnesota farm school. McMartin, a freshman, is a student of horticulture, and will use the funds provided by the scholarship to pursue his studies in that field. He is earning his way through school.

AS ADDED ATTRACTION TO ITS FAIR

EXPECTED TO HAVE OLYMPIC GAMES FOR ITS WORLD'S FAIR

OLYMPICS ONLY ONE OF SEVERAL SPORT HEADLINERS

By BERT M. DENBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Chicago today planned the greatest sports carnival in the world's history, to be held in 1933 as an added attraction to the world's fair.

Plans are under way to hold the Olympic games here at that time. Chairman Rufus C. Dawes of the fair committee, has been authorized to appoint a sports committee to negotiate for the games.

The Olympics would be only one of several sport headlines. A heavy-weight championship bout would be another. The world's series and an inter-sectional game between two leading football teams would add interest. It was also hoped to stage a horse-race which would compare in class with the other attractions. The dates of the fair, under present plans would be May 1 to Nov. 1. This length of time would allow all the planned sports events to be held during their respective seasons.

However, in order to obtain the Olympics, a postponement of one year of the 1932 games must be made. If Chicago can bring about this postponement the 1933 Olympics would afford the first opportunity which the United States has had to see the games since 1904, when they were held in St. Louis, the only city in this country which has sponsored them.

The fair's estimated attendance of 80,000,000 would insure the financial success of any sport classics offered.

If it becomes impossible to obtain the Olympics, fair committee members said they will stage a sports carnival which will compare with the international classic. Athletes from all over the world would be brought here.

It was pointed out that Soldiers' Field, Chicago's vast athletic grounds and Lake Michigan furnish the best sites for both land and aquatic contests in the world.

INDICTED FOR TRANSPORTING FIGHT FILMS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—After once being convicted and sentenced to jail on the charge, William Sievers, former theater manager, was indicted by the federal grand jury for transporting Tunney-Dempsey fight films from Chicago to St. Louis.

On his original sentence to three months in jail, Sievers moved for a new trial in federal court on the grounds his trial should have been conducted on an indictment instead of bare information.

The federal court ordered the district attorney's office to proceed accordingly with an indictment.

BLACK GOLD, DERBY WINNER, PASSES ON

New Orleans, La., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—Black Gold, the little dark horse who thrilled 75,000 people at Churchill Downs in 1924, when he won a Kentucky Derby, has passed on.

He was destroyed after he broke a fore-leg during the running of the Salome handicap here yesterday.

As he came into the head of the stretch, Black Gold went down. Jockey D. Emery was thrown over his head. The rest of the field thundered past. Black Gold got up, one leg dangling, and tried to go with them. He fell and tried again. The last time he failed to get up. A few minutes later he was shot.

TWO IMPORTANT CAGE GAMES IN MISSOURI VALLEY CONFERENCE

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—St. Louis and Norman, on Friday and Saturday nights respectively, are to be the scenes of the most important cage battles in the Missouri Valley conference this week.

In St. Louis the Tigers of M. U. will meet Washington university to decide which team will carry Missouri colors through the conference race. A similar contest will be staged at Norman where the Oklahoma Aggies will play the Sooners.

JIMMY McLARNIN TO FIGHT SID TERRIS

New York, Jan. 19.—(U.P.)—The New York state boxing commission today approved a match February 24 in New York between Jimmy McLarnin of California and Sid Terris, with the proviso, that McLarnin of California must make 135 pounds. The winner will be matched by Tex Rickard against Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion.

Just when it seemed that baseball would have to come into its own without the artificial stimulus of scandal, the New York Giants up and traded Rogers Hornsby to the Boston Braves for a couple of second raters.

Francis Hogan and Jimmy Welch may deserve more honorable mention than that, but the fact remains that Hornsby—judged by local standards—was worth a dozen of each.

John McGraw long has had his eye on Hogan, whom he regards as one of the ablest young backstops in the major leagues. The Giants were badly in need of a left fielder, and Welch may fill the bill.

But consider the man whose place this pair from the Hub is expected to fill. Hornsby was a ball player who was believed to be destined for greater things.

Already he had managed the St. Louis Cardinals when that ball club won its first pennant and world's championship. Following that success, Rogers came to New York in exchange for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring.

Ostensibly the purpose in bringing Hornsby to New York was that he might some day become manager of the Giants. As second baseman of McGraw's club in 1927, Hornsby played magnificent baseball. He led his club in that all-important factor of "runs driven in," and easily earned the salary of $40,000 which the Giants were reported to be paying him.

It will be recalled that when Rogers joined the Giants a year ago, he signed a two-year contract. Consequently, Judge Fuchs has had to take over "The Rajah" at the latter's own terms.

This is no great hardship upon the eminent Hub jurist. There are at least six other National League magnates who would be glad to do the same. John J. McGraw is the exception.

While planning to build a pennant winner for 1928, McGraw does not include Hornsby in his scheme of things. Hogan—yes. A most able young catcher still less than 21 years of age. Welch, an outfielder, who may, under Giant tutelage, find a regular berth.

The transfer of Hornsby to the Braves is a source of infinite satisfaction to Judge Fuchs. With Dr. Eddie Farrell at shortstop and Hornsby at second, the Boston Braves will have one of the best keystone combinations in baseball.

As for the Giants, the departure of Hornsby presents an opportunity for Andy Cohen, the Jewish infielder, to show what he can do at second base. Cohen was one of the best batsmen in the International League last season, and returns for his second try with the Giants in 1928.

Frank Hogan, a hitter as well as a brainy young catcher, may strengthen the Giants just where they need it most.

But the fact remains that the transfer of Hornsby remains one of the most interesting and straightest incidents of modern baseball.

LONG DISTANCE SERVICE EXTENDED

Belgium is Fifth Foreign Nation in Easy Telephone Reach of American Home

CONNECTION VIA LONDON

Brainerd-Brussels Costs $84 for First Three Minutes

Long distance telephone service from the United States and Cuba will be extended to continental Europe this morning, January 19, with the opening of service to Brussels and Antwerp in Belgium.

Belgium thus becomes the fifth foreign nation to be brought within speaking distance of the average American home. Connection will be made via London, using the trans-Atlantic radio-telephone link which has been in service for the past year. Extensions to other European cities of importance are contemplated in the near future.

Trans-Atlantic telephone service to Belgian points will be in operation from 7:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., Eastern standard time, the same period as that now in use for London. The rate for Belgium will be $3 higher for three minutes and $1 higher for each succeeding minute than the present rates from the United States and Cuba to London. Thus a Brainerd-Brussels or a New York-Antwerp call will cost $84 for the first three minutes and $28 for each minute thereafter. Calls will be handled in the order of their filing. The method of placing a call is the same as that for any other long distance point.

The trans-Atlantic radiotelephone service, which is now to be linked with the submarine telephone cable under the English Channel to Belgium, was opened for commercial service on January 7 of last year between New York and its suburban area and London and its suburban area. It was gradually extended on both sides of the Atlantic until on March 26 it comprised five American zones which included all of the forty-eight states and Havana, Cuba, and on the other side all points in England, Scotland and Wales.

The favorable reception accorded by the public to the usual service to England, Scotland and Wales has made possible the contemplation of further extensions to the continent of Europe. The volume of traffic on the existing service is averaging four times the number of calls per day made by the public after a year's experience of the first transcontinental circuit which was opened between New York and San Francisco in 1915.

The American-Belgium service is of particular interest because of the varied forms of travel which the voice currents of the respective speakers will utilize in intercommunicating in a small fraction of a second's time. From the American subscriber's telephone the message will travel by wire to the local telephone office and then to the New York long distance office. Here the trans-Atlantic trip begins, the first step being over a circuit of 70 miles to Rocky Point, L. I., where the radio transmitter is located. At that point intricate and powerful apparatus amplifies the power of the voice a hundred million times and converts it to radio waves which one sixtieth of a second later are picked up by a radio receiver at Cupar, Scotland. After this 3,200 mile journey the words need further amplification to begin the link of 450 miles of telephone circuit to London.

Arriving at the London long distance switchboard of the British post office near St. Paul's Cathedral, the voice currents continue their journey 71 miles through Canterbury to Margate. Here they enter a submarine telephone cable just north of the Strait of Dover and after 60 miles of under-water travel they emerge again near Ostend, Belgium. From here they continue 70 miles through Ghent to Brussels, and thence 29 miles to Antwerp.

Thin Design and Weave Important in Stockings

Stockings no longer are selected with attention only to color and weight, but now must be considered as well for thin design and weave. They have responded to the trend of all fashions toward lively embellishment, with the result that they have to be chosen more carefully than ever to suit the rest of the costume.

In hosiery for evening wear at the moment, the open-work meshes are much in demand, especially those that show an almost infinitesimal dot in the center of each tiny web, and have in addition a very slender and graceful clock extending well up on the leg. Another sheer stocking is made with a tiny knee design, which, though it is produced in weaving the silk, looks more like an insertion of real chantilly lace, when especially made in black.

The short skirt, no doubt, has inspired the idea for another style, in which a fancy banding is brought out in a jacquard design just below the knee. Some of these designs are two or more inches wide and terminate in an open-work pattern covering the knee joint. In another design of this style, in the composition of which the shoes seem to have had a say, there are deep ankle insertions worked out in oblongs. One side of these is bordered by very narrow clocks, which end in a small replica of the original motif.

For those who prefer their stockings without tracery, there are very sheer designs in gossamer weaves, with and without clocks. Clocks, by the way, are a trifle wider.

Paris Adopts Woolly, Gay Togs for Winter Sports

Fuzzy and bright are words to reckon with in picking a winter sports costume. Paris insists on one or both elements in the togs for skiing, tobogganing, skating, curling, mountain climbing and all the other "ings" of the snow countries.

Long knickers which tuck into galoshes are the universal choice for snow sports. Paris shows them in fleecy navy blues, dark browns and dark greens with fleece-lined jackets in bright checks, plaids or stripes, to match. Under the jacket is a pull-over sweater.

Aviation helmets are advocated for winter sports wear by some outfitters and are shown in a variety of colored leathers.

Brilliant displays of lightning and crashing claps of thunder, intermingled with the roar of the wind as the terror-stricken populace scurried for safety.

The storm was not confined to Cincinnati.

The blast razed several buildings at Hamilton, Ohio, and was reported to have struck Middletown. Communication was disrupted.

A score of men and women and a few children had been received at the general hospital at 11 A. M.

The rear compartment of the B. & O. station was blown out. No one was in the building at the time.

The storm also struck near Newton, Ohio, blowing down smokestacks and shattering windows. Fire Chief Binder telephoned Cincinnati officials that no one was injured or killed.

A cobbler, pinned beneath a pile of debris in his shop, was rescued by relief workers. He was not seriously injured.

Police Chief William Copeland and Fire Chief Barney Houston directed the relief work. Tram-way service was paralyzed and the street railway company pressed its busses into service.

Piles of shattered timbers, broken glass and trash impeded rescue workers.

The storm was described by weather officials as a "severe squall." The cloud which carried the storm did not whirl and dip but swept the earth and tore along a straight line, they said.

The wind ripped a sixteen foot pole from the B. & O. station and dropped it in a yard two blocks away. Electric signs were ripped apart and their pieces scattered for hundreds of feet.

TWISTER AT HAMILTON, O.

Hamilton, O., Jan. 19.—A twister struck Hamilton this morning, leveling a score of houses and uprooting trees and telephone poles. Windows in the Van Buren and Taylor schools were shattered and the streets were littered with debris. An early check-up revealed only one person—a girl—injured.

LOUISVILLE TOUCHED BY THE STORM

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 19.—A tornado struck the southern fringe of Louisville today, causing from $25,000 to $100,000 damage to homes and injuring six persons seriously.

According to reports, damage of approximately $22,000 was done to homes and garages on South Parkway.

J. Bertram Simpson, 25, asleep in the second floor of his home, suffered a broken leg and internal injuries when struck by bricks as the front wall of the home gave way. His parents, and a sister, Paulina, 19, who were eating breakfast on the first floor of the house, were uninjured.

Damage in the Louisville vicinity was estimated at $25,000. The village of Fern Creek, 12 miles from here, was hard hit, but no one was reported killed. Twenty frame houses were razed, according to telephone reports from the stricken town.

Police Chief William Copeland and Fire Chief Barney Houston directed the relief work. Tram-way service was paralyzed and the street railway company pressed its busses into service.

Piles of shattered timbers, broken glass and trash impeded rescue workers.

The storm was described by weather officials as a "severe squall." The cloud which carried the storm did not whirl and dip but swept the earth and tore along a straight line, they said.

The wind ripped a sixteen foot pole from the B. & O. station and dropped it in a yard two blocks away. Electric signs were ripped apart and their pieces scattered for hundreds of feet.

TWISTER AT HAMILTON, O.

Hamilton, O., Jan. 19.—A twister struck Hamilton this morning, leveling a score of houses and uprooting trees and telephone poles. Windows in the Van Buren and Taylor schools were shattered and the streets were littered with debris. An early check-up revealed only one person—a girl—injured.

LOUISVILLE TOUCHED BY THE STORM

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 19.—A tornado struck the southern fringe of Louisville today, causing from $25,000 to $100,000 damage to homes and injuring six persons seriously. According to reports, damage of approximately $22,000 was done to homes and garages on South Parkway.

J. Bertram Simpson, 25, asleep in the second floor of his home, suffered a broken leg and internal injuries when struck by bricks as the front wall of the home gave way. His parents, and a sister, Paulina, 19, who were eating breakfast on the first floor of the house, were uninjured.

Damage in the Louisville vicinity was estimated at $25,000. The village of Fern Creek, 12 miles from here, was hard hit, but no one was reported killed. Twenty frame houses were razed, according to telephone reports from the stricken town.

Members of Alleged Narcotic Ring Sought

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Federal authorities today sought other members of an alleged narcotic ring following the arrest late Wednesday of Jack Goldie and his wife and the seizure of two ounces of morphine and four "toys" of opium in their apartment here. The drugs were valued at $1,000, authorities said.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST MAN WHO RAN DOWN VETERAN

Oklahoma City, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Murder charges were filed here today against Miss Elsie Lemay, driver of the automobile which last night ran down and killed Henry S. Rudy, 81, Civil war veteran. Miss Lemay pleaded not guilty when arraigned. Police had charged she was intoxicated when she drove the car into Rudy as he crossed a downtown street.

SCORES ADMISSION OF SEN.-ELECT SMITH

Washington, Jan. 19.—(UP)—Admission of Senator-elect Frank L. Smith to the senate would have the same effect as a "seats for sale" sign over the door of the chamber, Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.) declared today in debate on the Reed resolution to declare vacant the seat of the Illinoisan. "Samuel Insull (Illinois contributor to Smith's campaign) has bought and paid for this seat," said Norris. "It is his property. But if we give it to him, what is to prevent him buying additional seats?" "This body is proposing to investigate the alleged power trust. Mr. Insull is interested. Shall we give him a voice in this investigation?"

MINER OFFICIAL SHOT AND KILLED FROM AMBUSH TODAY

Pittston, Pa., Jan. 19.—(UP)—Thomas Lillis, 45, treasurer of the United Mine Workers local union Number 1607 and a recognized labor leader in this district, was shot and killed from ambush by an unknown assailant today. His body, shot many times was found about a mile from his home in Brownston, near here. Police believed the shooting was due to a disagreement in the local union in which Lillis was elected to office recently.

The Girl You Left Behind You Didn't you promise yourself last year — only a few short weeks ago — that you were going to "turn over a new leaf"? That you really were going to start a savings account, stop frittering money away on unnecessary things and pay cash for everything. The Girl You Left Behind You in 1927 was very serious about it and completely convinced that putting the family finances on a pay-as-you-go basis was the only sensible thing to do. She realized that half of the monthly bills were unnecessary and that paying cash made you a keener judge of values and a more intelligent shopper. Don't forget all about that girl — now that 1928 is two weeks old. Our cash selling means a cash saving, of course, which is handy to start that bank account, but it means more than that. It will help you face the future with confidence and in 1929 the Girl You Leave Behind You will look back over 1928 with satisfaction and peace of mind. J.C. Penney Co.

Trial Today

DOCTOR GIVES AFFIDAVIT

Judge Bert Fesler Sets Proctor Trial
for 10 A. M.
Monday

An affidavit by Dr. J. A. Thabes was to be submitted by Attorneys Murphy and Cook this afternoon at 3 o'clock before Judge W. S. McClenahan at which time they will move for a continuance of the trial of P. J. Long, state legislator, facing four indictments of receiving stolen money from Almon H. Proctor, cashier of the First National bank of Ironton and "being an accessory to a felony," from January 23, on the grounds that Mr. Long's health will not permit the holding of the trial on that date.

In support of their motion, Murphy and Cook will present an affidavit by Dr. Thabes stating that on January 13 he examined Long and that the examination reveals that Long has diabetes in an advanced stage and that the disease has progressed to the stage where Mr. Long should be confined to a hospital for treatment immediately.

Mr. Long was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital this week and is under the care of Dr. Thabes. Mrs. Long is also in the hospital here for thyroid treatment. The belief is expressed here that worry over the impending trial brought about the acute stages of their conditions. Hospital officials this morning stated that Mr. and Mrs. Long had passed a restful night.

Dr. Thabes' affidavit further states that Mr. Long is in such mental and physical condition that he is unable to undergo a strain and unable to properly present a defense at this time.

Proctor Trial January 23

Judge Bert Fesler yesterday at a hearing in Duluth denied the motion of Fryberger, Fulton, and Boyle, counsel for Almon H. Proctor for a continuance of the trial from January 23. The state was represented by County Attorney W. F. Wieland.

The defendant's attorneys moved for a continuance on the grounds that they did not have sufficient time to prepare for trial. It developed that the state on January 14 advised the defendant's attorneys that they would first proceed with the trial of the Proctor indictment charging robbery in the first degree.

The court held that the defendant's attorneys had sufficient time to prepare for trial and denied their motion. It was then settled that the state will proceed with the Proctor trial on January 23 at 10 o'clock in district court.

CHRISTMAS CHEER GIVEN

Arrangements Made to Offer Toxin
Anti-Toxin Treatments
During January

Visits to schools, the check of the start of a scarlet fever epidemic, the arrangements for distribution of Christmas boxes for the needy children of the county, health talks, administration of toxin anti-toxin, formed major items of business in the work of Miss Thora Ingebritson, county nurse, during the months of November and December.

The report for the two months follows:

Total number visits to homes, 80.

Total number visits, 121.

This number includes: nursing care, 7; instruction and demonstration, 56; investigation of chicken pox and scarlet fever, 19; miscellaneous, 39.

School Work

Forty-two visits were made to school rooms, four of which were special communicable disease visits. Fourteen children were excluded. One thousand three children were seen, 490 of which received toxin anti-toxin. Twenty-three class talks were given.

Special Cases

One application was sent to the State Hospital for Crippled Children for a child who has had infantile paralysis.

Application was made to the University Hospital for a patient suffering from cancer and she was admitted to the hospital.

A man who has an artificial limb was taken to Minneapolis to have the limb re-adjusted.

Five children were taken to hospitals, one a malnourished baby to a local hospital, two infantile paralysis, one curvature of the spine and one burned case were taken to the State Hospital for Crippled Children.

Application was made to the University Hospital for another child and she was admitted.

Salvage assistance was given at the sale of articles made by the patients of Deerwood Sanatorium.

Visitors

Miss Eloise Bringgold, field representative from the Child Hygiene Division, State Board of Health, and Kenneth Nilson from the State Department of Education, department for rehabilitation for crippled persons were visitors.

Christmas Boxes and Party

Twenty-one Christmas boxes were made up for needy children in the county. The toys were given by the children of the Whittier and Lincoln schools and wrapped attractively by the Camp Fire Girls. Several donations such as six large baby dolls were given by a local merchant and money was given by individuals to purchase candy and nuts. Assistance was given to the Lion's club for a Christmas party which was given at the Ransford hotel for kiddies from the city and country. Santa Claus presented each child with a gift, fruit, candy and nuts. About thirty-five children were in attendance.

Tuberculosis Clinics

Three tuberculosis clinics were held with an attendance of twelve, six old and six new cases.

Scarlet Fever

Scarlet fever was discovered in one of the districts and in order to control its spread, it was necessary to close the school. Three families were quarantined. Complications followed in several cases. Two cases developed membranes in the throat which were very suspicious of diphtheria and consequently, cultures were taken. They proved to be negative.

Toxin Anti-Toxin

Two hundred and seventy-eight letters were sent out to members of school boards explaining the administration of toxin anti-toxin and five talks were given at various meetings which resulted in arrangements being made by several school boards. Four hundred and ninety pre-school and school children were given the inoculations. Arrangements are being made by other school boards to offer this treatment during January.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Robert Bruce

ROBERT BRUCE, of Scotland—a man without a home, a king without a throne, a ruler without subjects—lay hidden in a tumble-down hut one day early in the fourteenth century, while the soldiers of King Edward I of England scoured the surrounding country under orders to capture the fugitive monarch dead or alive. As the luckless Bruce gazed idly about him he noticed a spider swinging from a strand of web that it was trying to affix to the opposite wall. Six times the spider swung and failed. The king grew interested. He had been half minded to give up his own useless struggle against England's mighty power. But, noting the insect's perseverance, he took heart. He resolved that if the spider should win in its task of fixing the web to the opposite wall, he himself would once more attempt to resist England's invasion. On the seventh trial the spider succeeded; and Bruce, true to his pledge, set forth to renew his own hopeless warfare.

North Britain, the country later known as Scotland, had never wholly been conquered in the Roman invasion. Its inhabitants, savages known as Picts and Scots, had for centuries resisted all attempts to crush them as other savage tribes had been crushed. But at last Scotland had fallen under English influence and had become a mere Anglo-Norman feudal monarchy.

A question arose in 1292 as to succession to the throne. Edward I, king of England, was asked to decide the matter; and, through his influence, a puppet of his own, John Balliol, was chosen. This strengthened England's power in Scotland, and the unhappy northern kingdom was almost passive under the English yoke. Balliol, urged on by malcontents, sought alliance with France and took up arms against England, but Edward speedily captured him, routed his armies and took Edinburgh and other Scotch strongholds.

Then, in the hour of Scotland's sorest need, when all her nobles were cringing at Edward's feet, a hero arose—a man of the people, William Wallace. Wallace raised a rabble of peasants and townsmen, molded them into a well-trained, organized band, and in 1297 captured town after town from the English. The nobles held aloof from him, but the common people followed him devotedly. Edward sent a strong army to put Wallace down, deeming the revolt too petty for his own personal attention. Wallace, with a force many thousands inferior to the invaders, met this English army near Stirling.

Wallace's men were light-armed and ill-equipped and had less than 200 horses in all. The well-mounted English, in their heavy armor, looked for an easy victory. But, after a fierce battle, Wallace's peasants put them to flight. It was the first time in history that a disciplined feudal army was routed by a force recruited from the plain people. It was the beginning of the end.

Having repulsed the English, Wallace set to work reorganizing Scotland and reviving her shattered commerce.

Pressing his conquests he even invaded the north of England, thus carrying the war into the enemy's country. But, alarmed at the extent of the revolution, Edward sent a new army of 90,000 men against him. The nobles refused to help Wallace and his resources were only such as he himself could muster. Yet he won two battles against the stronger invader before the superior force overwhelmed and crushed his little army. Wallace was captured, sent to London and there, after a mock trial, the gallant patriot was hanged as a traitor.

Edward, as an example to future revolutionists, devastated Scotland, inflicting terrible penalty for England's former defeats. But the result was exactly opposite to what he had planned. A nobleman, Lord Robert de Bruce (or Robert Bruce) revolted, drawing about him the Scottish nobility. He was crowned King of Scotland in 1329. Edward at once attacked him, driving him from the throne, and again ravaging the stricken country. It was during this period that Bruce took his life lesson from the spider in the hut whither he had fled for refuge.

Almost at once, upon Bruce's resolve to try once more to save Scotland, the turn of fortune came. Edward I died and was succeeded by his weak dissolute son, Edward II. Taking advantage of the latter's indolence, Bruce raised a strong army, and by 1333 had won back nearly all of Scotland. The next year the last and most decisive battle of the war was fought at Bannockburn (Bannock Creek). Bruce, by better knowledge of the marshy, uneven ground and by superior generalship, won the day. His Scottish spearmen fought on foot in a circular formation somewhat like the modern military "square," and through this circle of steel the English knights could not break. Again it was proven that the flower of chivalry could make no headway against well-generated private soldiers. The English were utterly routed.

Never again, though many other conflicts arose, did England wholly subdue Scotland.

At last, in 1603, the two nations became one, under James I of England, who chanced to be natural heir to both thrones.

TOMB OF EMPRESS
MADE AGRA FAMOUSListed Among World's Most Beautiful Communities.

Washington.—"Agra, central Indian city included in a recent list of the world's twenty most beautiful communities, and famous as site of the Taj Mahal, is a monument in stone to the Mogul empire of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the Washington Geographic society. "While Tudors and Stuarts were governing England, and adventurers of many nations were seeking wealth or freedom in America, descendants of Tamerlane were building an empire in India which for display and magnificence has never been equaled. Agra, capital of the Great Mogul, was adorned with palaces and mosques which rank today among the wonders of the earth.

Where Chessmen Were Women. "The Oriental world then bowed before an emperor whose throne, supported by peacocks studded with jewels, cost $5,000,000. His chess board was a courtyard paved in black and white marble squares, and for chess men he had slave girls in colored costumes, their movements directed by his voice. Ninety-nine wives were in his harem, a hundred being considered unlucky, and princes from beyond the seas crowded his audience chamber under a ceiling of solid gold. Such was Shah Jehan, during whose reign the Mogul empire reached its golden age, and who built the Taj Mahal as a tomb for his favorite wife, Arjuman Bannu, 'the exalted of the palace.'

"Shah Jehan mounted the throne of India by wading through the blood of his male relatives, having killed them all to nip revolution in the bud. He ruled with incredible cruelty and splendor, and died at seventy-four, the prisoner of his usurping son whose mother was the same Arjuman Bannu, in whose honor he had built the Taj Mahal. At her death Shah Jehan's hair had turned white, and it was her son who imprisoned his aging father in the fort at Agra and ruled instead. "The interior of this old red sand stone fort, which is still standing, is filled with the palaces of Mogul emperors, buildings of supreme beauty. In one of them is shown the Jasmine tower which sheltered Shah Jehan's 'exalted of the palace' during her lifetime. Here the emperor had spent many hours with his favorite wife and its platform commands a superb view of her tomb, the Taj Mahal.

"At his own request the aged emperor was brought to die in this favorite haunt of his youth, in sight of the building which has since become his own resting place as well as that of his wife.

"This world-renowned white marble building is set in a beautifully kept garden between two symmetrical placed red sandstone mosques, the whole being kept in perfect repair by the government. Hither, during India's more pleasant fall and winter months, flock thousands of tourists from Europe and America as well as from neighboring countries.

"Palaces of the Mogul emperors, the white marble Pearl mosque, and the nearby tomb of Akbar share with the Taj Mahal the glories of Mogul architecture of the past. In a sense Delhi and Agra are to Mogul India what Venice is to the Venetian, sacred cities of ancient times. Certainly Agra embodies what is most beautiful in Moslem taste, though several Italian draftsmen are said to have been employed in its plans.

Golf Beside the Taj Mahal. "The modern city of Agra is a railway and distributing center of importance in north-central India and is capital of the British governed united provinces, which include the districts of Agra and Oudh. It lies on the banks of the River Jumna, one of the major tributaries of the Ganges. Chief among its industries is export of red sandstone, in which the district abounds, and of which the city itself is constructed. Palaces of modern India, however, though built of the same material, in their elaborate magnificence compare but poorly with the chaste designs of the ancient Agra. Harmonious lines and delicate balance distinguish the buildings of the Great Mogul, beside whose historic walls officials and tourists now play golf and drink tea."

Prehistoric Cities
Revealed by Floods

Calcutta.—The recent floods have brought a fortune to the maharajah of Mayurbhanj. In Bengal, by washing away on the banks of the River Vaitarni immense quantities of earth, exposing prehistoric cities full of archaeological treasures. Implements and ornaments of the Neolithic age were found and palaces were laid bare which were buried for centuries in the deep jungle. Arrangements are being made for a systematic excavation and examination of the finds, which are expected to throw light on the civilization of India before the coming of the Aryan conquerors.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Robert Bruce

ROBERT BRUCE, of Scotland—a man without a home, a king without a throne, a ruler without subjects—lay hidden in a tumble-down hut one day early in the Fourteenth century, while the soldiers of King Edward I of England scoured the surrounding country under orders to capture the fugitive monarch dead or alive. As the luckless Bruce gazed idly about him he noticed a spider swinging from a strand of web that it was trying to affix to the opposite wall. Six times the spider swung and failed. The king grew interested. He had been half minded to give up his own useless struggle against England's mighty power. But, noting the insect's perseverance, he took heart. He resolved that if the spider should win in its task of fixing the web to the opposite wall, he himself would once more attempt to resist England's invasion. On the seventh trial the spider succeeded; and Bruce, true to his pledge, set forth to renew his own hopeless warfare.

North Britain, the country later known as Scotland, had never wholly been conquered in the Roman invasion. Its inhabitants, savages known as Picts and Scots, had for centuries resisted all attempts to crush them as other savage tribes had been crushed. But at last Scotland had fallen under English influence and had become a mere Anglo-Norman feudal monarchy.

A question arose in 1292 as to succession to the throne. Edward I, king of England, was asked to decide the matter; and, through his influence, a puppet of his own, John Balliol, was chosen. This strengthened England's power in Scotland, and the unhappy northern kingdom was almost passive under the English yoke. Balliol, urged on by malcontents, sought alliance with France and took up arms against England, but Edward speedily captured him, routed his armies and took Edinburgh and other Scotch strongholds.

Then, in the hour of Scotland's sorest need, when all her nobles were cowering at Edward's feet, a hero arose—a man of the people, William Wallace. Wallace raised a rabble of peasants and townsmen, molded them into a well-trained, organized band, and in 1297 captured town after town from the English. The nobles held aloof from him, but the common people followed him devotedly. Edward sent a strong army to put Wallace down, deeming the revolt too petty for his own personal attention. Wallace, with a force many thousands inferior to the invaders, met this English army near Stirling.

Wallace's men were light-armed and ill-equipped and had less than 200 horses in all. The well-mounted English, in their heavy armor, looked for an easy victory. But, after a fierce battle, Wallace's peasants put them to flight. It was the first time in history that a disciplined feudal army was routed by a force recruited from the plain people. It was the beginning of the end.

Having repulsed the English, Wallace set to work reorganizing Scotland and reviving her shattered commerce.

Pressing his conquests he even invaded the north of England, thus carrying the war into the enemy's country. But, alarmed at the extent of the revolution, Edward sent a new army of 90,000 men against him. The nobles refused to help Wallace and his resources were only such as he himself could muster. Yet he won two battles against the stronger invader before the superior force overwhelmed and crushed his little army. Wallace was captured, sent to London and there, after a mock trial, the gallant patriot was hanged as a traitor.

Edward, as an example to future revolutionists, deviated Scotland, inflicting terrible penalty for England's former defects. But the result was exactly opposite to what he had planned. A nobleman, Lord Robert de Bruce (or Robert Bruce) revolted, drawing about him the Scottish nobility. He was crowned King of Scotland in 1306. Edward at once attacked him, driving him from the throne, and again ravaging the stricken country. It was during this period that Bruce took his life lesson from the spider in the hut whither he had fled for refuge.

Almost at once, upon Bruce's resolve to try once more to save Scotland, the turn of fortune came. Edward I died and was succeeded by his weak dissolute son, Edward II. Taking advantage of the latter's indolence, Bruce raised a strong army, and by 1313 had won back nearly all of Scotland. The next year the last and most decisive battle of the war was fought at Bannockburn (Bannock Creek). Bruce, by better knowledge of the marshy, uneven ground and by superior generalship, won the day. His Scottish spearmen fought on foot in a circular formation somewhat like the modern military "square," and through this circle of steel the English knights could not break. Again it was proven that the flower of chivalry could make no headway against well-generated private soldiers. The English were utterly routed.

Never again, though many other conflicts arose, did England wholly subdue Scotland. At last, in 1603, the two nations became one, under James I of England, who claimed to be natural heir to both thrones.

Such was Shah Jehan, during whose reign the Mogul empire reached its golden age, and who built the Taj Mahal as a tomb for his favorite wife, Arjuman Banu, the exalted of the palace."

"Shah Jehan mounted the throne of India by wading through the blood of his male relatives, having killed them all to nip revolution in the bud. He ruled with incredible cruelty and splendor, and died at seventy-four, the prisoner of his usurping son whose mother was the same Arjuman Banu, in whose honor he had built the Taj Mahal. At her death Shah Jehan's hair had turned white, and it was her son who imprisoned his aging father in the fort at Agra and ruled instead. "The interior of this old red sand stone fort, which is still standing, is filled with the palaces of Mogul emperors, buildings of supreme beauty. In one of them is shown the Jasmine tower which sheltered Shah Jehan's 'exalted of the palace' during her lifetime. Here the emperor had spent many hours with his favorite wife and its platform commands a superb view of her tomb, the Taj Mahal.

"At his own request the aged emperor was brought to die in this favorite haunt of his youth, in sight of the building which has since become his own resting place as well as that of his wife.

"This world-renowned white marble building is set in a beautifully kept garden between two symmetrically placed red sandstone mosques, the whole being kept in perfect repair by the government. Hither, during India's more pleasant fall and winter months, flock thousands of tourists from Europe and America as well as from neighboring countries.

"Palaces of the Mogul emperors, the white marble Pearl mosque, and the nearby tomb of Akbar share with the Taj Mahal the glories of Mohamadan architecture of the past. In a sense Delhi and Agra are to Mohamadan India what Benares is to the Hindu, sacred cities of ancient times. Certainly Agra embodies what is most beautiful in Moslem taste, though several Italian draftsmen are said to have been employed in its plans.

Golf Beside the Taj Mahal.

"The modern city of Agra is a railway and distributing center of importance in north-central India and is capital of the British governed United Provinces, which include the districts of Agra and Oudh. It lies on the banks of the River Jumna, one of the major tributaries of the Ganges. Chief among its industries is export of red sandstone, in which the district abounds, and of which the city itself is constructed. Palaces of modern India, however, though built of the same material, in their elaborate magnificence compare but poorly with the chaste designs of the ancient Agra. Harmonious lines and delicate balance distinguish the buildings of the Great Mogul, beside whose historic walls officials and tourists now play golf and drink tea."

Sassy Beggar

Dallas, Texas.—A beggar who became enraged and railed at a man who had given him a dime was fined $25 in the corporation court here.

Prehistoric Cities Revealed by Floods

Calcutta.—The recent floods have brought a fortune to the maharajah of Mayurbhanj in Bengal, by washing away on the banks of the River Vaitarani immense quantities of earth, exposing prehistoric cities full of archeological treasures. Implements and ornaments of the Neolithic age were found and palaces were laid bare which were buried for centuries in the deep jungle. Arrangements are being made for a systematic excavation and examination of the finds, which are expected to throw light on the civilization of India before the coming of the Aryan conquerors.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION OF HICKERSON AND COMPANY

For the purpose of forming a Minnesota corporation, S. R. Hickerson, Con O'Brien and R. R. Gould hereby certify: The name of the corporation shall be Hickerson and Company. The general nature of its business shall be to manufacture clothing and the principal place of transacting its business shall be Brainerd, Minnesota. Its period of duration shall be 30 years. S. R. Hickerson, Con O'Brien and R. R. Gould, all residing at Brainerd, Minnesota, are its incorporators.

Its management shall be vested in a Board of five Directors who shall be elected at the annual meeting of the common stockholders to be held on the 3rd Tuesday in January and until the first election S. R. Hickerson, M. J. Hickerson, Con O'Brien, W. H. Cleary and R. R. Gould, all of whose address is Brainerd Minnesota, shall compose said Board.

The Capital Stock shall be $50,000.00, which shall be paid in cash, to be divided into 500 shares each of the par value of $100.00. The first hundred and fifty shares thereof shall be common stock and 250 shares preferred. The preferred stock shall be non-assessable and cumulative dividends shall be paid thereon, semi-annually, at the rate of 6 per cent per annum and said payments shall be made before any dividends shall be paid on the common stock. In the event of the winding up or dissolution of said corporation, the holders of the preferred stock shall be entitled to a distribution of the net assets of said corporation up to $100.00 per share. Preferred stock may be redeemed upon 60 days' notice at $105.00 per share and accrued earnings. The voting power shall be confined to holders of the common stock.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which said corporation shall at any time be subject is $10,000.00. Witness our hands, January 17, 1923.
